Washington—(CPA).—If sympathy and attention can restore the health of William Howard Taft, he has it in greater abundance today than any public man in recent history. And particularly does he enjoy an esteem and popularity in the national capital which has been the privilege of few men in the public service to command.

Anxiety for the recovery of Mr. Taft is reflected throughout the entire government for, in the life of the national capital, William Howard Taft has for more than a quarter of a century held an enviable position. First as solicitor general, then as secretary of war and finally as president of the United States and chief justice.

Washington has come to know the jovial, good-natured and capable public servant who has given even in his executive days could be described as impartial justice.

Mr. Taft never had a prejudiced mind when he sat as the trustee of the government's interest. He could be as loyal to his party as any man but he could also abandon partisan impulses as quickly as any independent.

LIKED FOR FRANKNESS

But it was the human side of Mr. Taft which endeared him to the people with whom he came in contact for he has always been the essence of fairness. His democracy has been simple and straight-forward. News-papers like him for his frankness and for his genuine efforts to guide them on matters of public interest.

In recent years while naturally precluded from taking an active part in public controversy because of his judicial position, Mr. Taft has nevertheless followed with keen interest the general trend of government policy. He liked to chat with friends about everything from politics to the

25 DRY LAW CASES ARE DISPOSED OF BY COURT

Madison—(CP).—Twenty-five cases, all involving violation of the federal prohibition laws, were disposed of by Judge R. C. Baltzell in U. S. District court here Thursday.

At the same time, testimony was taken in the case against Charles Notaras and Nick Cuda, both of Chicago, charged with passing counterfeit $20 bills at Kibbourn last July. Witnesses were heard, who claimed to recognize the men as passers of the bills.

The heaviest fines levied in court were against Max and Leo Deinberg, Baraboo, brothers, who were fined $2,000 together and each was sentenced to six months in the Milwaukee House of Correction. Two men, Alden Jopp and John R. Green, also were fined with the Deinbergs. Jopp was fined $500, and Green was sentenced to 90 days in the Dane county jail with a 60 days of the term suspended.

Army Man's Mailed Fist Rules Canon City Prison

Canon City, Colo.—(AP).—Within the gray granite walls of the Colorado state penitentiary a restless prison population awoke today to find itself under control of a military dictator—a man who rose from a sick bed to strike with the mailed fist at a riotous group of convicts who in four months have taken 13 lives and caused inestimable damage.

The man, austere in manner and curt in speech is Col. Patrick J. Hamrock, bred to army traditions and by his own admission "a fighting Irishman." He led troops and won honors in the Sioux Indian campaigns in Cuba and in France.

The dictatorship was declared yesterday by a harried state board of correction which just had worded a public statement refusing to comply with a demand by Gov. William H. Adams that it resign. Its edict of military rule in the walled city said that, while Warden F. E. Crawford would retain his post, Colonel Hamrock would be given entire charge of the guards and prisoners.

Rising from the hospital bed where he was recuperating from a three-week illness, Colonel Hamrock entered the prison only a few hours after his appointment.

"I accept the task and responsibility," was his terse comment. "I, alone, am to be responsible for the behavior and discipline of the inmates under my charge. There will be no more riots."

A grim task faced the new "special deputy warden" on his first day in full charge.

Yesterday Warden Crawford received a tip that three revolvers and some nitro-glycerine were secreted within the prison walls. Members

PRISON TERMS END EMBEZZLING CASE

Five Men Sentenced to Serve Sentences in Looting of Milwaukee Bank

Milwaukee—(AP).—The last chapter was written today in a tangled story of race track betting, minor speculations and systematic looting which brought five men to grief.

Government deputy marshals, obeying the mandate of Judge F. A. Geller, made ready to take to prison or the house of correction Ervin F. Voelz, former cashier, and three men who aided him in the embezzlement of $215,000 from the National Bank of Commerce, Milwaukee.

Charles Fox, fifth man and the alleged "brains" of the group, already is under a five-year sentence at Leavenworth. He will be joined shortly by Charles Schipper, race track gambler who lost much of the money on the "ponies," and by Louis Frank, Chicago, race track "bookie."

Schipper and Frank were sentenced yesterday to two years in prison and the latter was fined $500.

Voelz was given a year in the Milwaukee House of Correction; no more, because he turned government witness and aided in the prosecution of the others. Charles Burkhardt, actor and one time leader of the Harefoot club at the University of Wisconsin, received a similar light sentence and for a similar reason.

The whole series of embezzlements discovered when Voelz was transferred into another department of the bank, started, it was brought out, when Voelz borrowed money from his wife's account to put it on horses. Later, under importunings from Fox, he dipped into other people's funds.

FREED FATHER SLAYER FACES ANOTHER CHARGE

Milwaukee—(AP).—Gustave Tietz, Jr., 20, who shot and killed his father during a family quarrel, today was in jail again—this time facing investigation into a spurious check deal.

Released yesterday by District Attorney George A. Bowman who said he believed his story that he killed his father in self-defense Wednesday night, Tietz was re-arrested last night by Detective Captain Harry McCrory.

"When we thought he was going to be named in a murder warrant," McCrory said, "we decided to let the check matter go, but when the district attorney released him, we decided to have him where we wanted him."

PREMIER ASKS ABOLITION OF ALL U-BOATS

Also Favors Ultimate Abolition of Battleships and Cruiser Cut

London—(AP).—The official declaration of the British government for the London conference as agreed to by the British dominions and the government of the United Kingdom was issued by Prime Minister MacDonald this afternoon. It featured the ultimate abolition of battleships and submarines and the limitation of cruisers and other categories.

The text of the statement, which presented the British viewpoint, just as Secretary Stimson's statement yesterday presented the American, was as follows:

"His Majesty's government in the United Kingdom considers the naval conference of supreme importance. It believes the conference ought not only to reduce existing fleets and building programs but put an end finally to competition in naval armaments and thus constitute an important step towards the ultimate establishment of peace on an unsalable foundation.

"The policy of his Majesty's government in the United Kingdom is to keep the highway of the seas open for trade and communication and, in relation to the political state of the world, to take what steps are necessary to secure this. In estimating its naval needs, the government has also to take into account its obligations under the covenant of the league of nations, partly offset though they are by the security afforded under the covenant by its provision of mutual support.

"There are also other commitments which have to be fulfilled in relation to the present state of the world. In deciding what these commitments amount to in terms of naval strength, the government has to estimate the changes of war breaking out, because, unless this is done, fleets will be built which will never be of any use; will threaten rather than protect, and will at best be a waste of national resources.

"The government feels that if naval establishments are not to be a menace an equilibrium must be maintained between them by means of international agreement. It feels, moreover, that this equilibrium will not be secured by mere numerical equality in ships and tonnage, but only by adoption of agreed programs.

COUNTY INCOME TAX IS CONSIDERED AT MADISON SESSION

Madison—(AP).—A plan to establish a county income tax was given momentum here Thursday night when the Dane county board of supervisors passed a resolution of Lowell T. Thronson, urging investigation of a taxation plan.

The resolution, which authorizes the committees on taxation and finance to devise an income tax method and learn from the state legislature if such a measure is constitutional, was passed unanimously without discussion.

Mr. Thronson, in an address, said he did not feel that the property owners, through personal property taxes, of the county should be called to shoulder the burden of raising tax moneys alone. In 1931, the county will need approximately $1,750,000, he said.

The income tax would add 10 percent to the sum paid the state, the entire amount to go to the county.

ATTACK VALIDITY OF DENISON INDICTMENT

Washington—(AP).—A demurrer has been filed attacking the validity of the indictment charging Representative Denison of Illinois and John Layne, his former secretary, with possessing intoxicating liquor.

The brief, filed by attorneys for the two, contends that the indictment returned by a District of Columbia grand jury is so vague that a judgment returned upon it would not protect the defendants from another prosecution for the same offense.

It also set forth that the indictment did not specify the kind or quantity it charged was found in a trunk in Denison's office in the house of office building. The demurrer added that there was no definition of time or place or how the alleged offense was committed or how he came into possession of the liquor; he was charged with having.

The contention also was raised that while the indictment charged the two with possessing liquor, it did not show the acts of either or both of the defendants specifically constituting possession.

Bowling Green, Ky.—(AP).—Closing arguments by defense and commonwealth this morning in the trial of James Elmer Grayson, charged with the robbery of the Oakland Savings bank and the subsequent murder of J. Robert Kirby, president of the bank, who was shot at the head of a posse which attempted to stop the flight of the bandits, will place the case in the hands of the jury.

The defense completed testimony yesterday when Mrs. Will Lloyd and her daughter, Lanielle, 15, testified that they had seen the bandits' car stop in front of their house at eight of the posse and that one of the three men in the car had leaped from the machine and ran across an open field before a shot was fired.

The commonwealth's testimony given by Grayson who declared he had tried to get the two men with him to surrender and when they indicated they were going to fight, he jumped from the car and fled.

She succeeded in summoning the police, who took her to St. Elizabeth hospital. Friday morning attending physicians said her condition was slightly better.

The assassin escaped and the mayors were brought toward Tampico in an automobile, the outgoing mayor, Martin Martinez, dying enroute. The incoming mayor, Ciro Rodriguez, died soon after reaching this city.

Troops were held in their barracks here throughout yesterday as a precautionary measure consequent to public excitement after the attempt against the life of President Ortiz Rubio. There were no disturbances.

Women adherents of Jose Vasconcelos, defeated presidential candidate, stood as a guard of honor, all Wednesday, the day of President Ortiz Rubio's inauguration, at the tomb of Aurelio Cols, Vasconcelista leader, who was assassinated in Tampico during the last presidential campaign.

TWO ROBBERS LOOT IOWA BANK—FLEE WITH $13,000

Sioux City, Iowa—(AP).—Two armed bandits held up and robbed the Lewis State Bank at Lewis, a suburb of $5,000 in cash and $8,000 in securities about 10:45 o'clock this morning. The bandits, displaying revolvers, ordered four employees and two customers to lay face downward on the floor.

Snatching up all the money in sight, both on the counters and in the tills and vault, the robbers hastily stuffed it into sacks and as they prepared to depart ordered the employees and customers to enter the vault, breaking the doors, the bandits left the building, jumping into a car and making their escape.

Nebraska College Dispute Quieted As Prof Resigns

Hastings, Neb.—(AP).—Quiet settled down over the Hastings campus today as directors sought a temporary successor to Dr. Willard E. Uphaus, deposed head of the school's department of religious education, who departed last yesterday to accept a research scholarship at the University of Yale.

The controversy over Dr. Uphaus' resignation has for two days transfused the ordinarily tranquil halls of the local Presbyterian institution into a battle-ground with three distinct groups in the fray.

Dr. Uphaus, who announced his sudden resignation Wednesday, insisted until the time of his departure that trustees had "fired" him for teaching what they termed "very liberal and even radical doctrines."

Administrative officers quickly charged insisting that the teaching of head of the religious education department has resigned voluntarily to "accept a better and more profitable publicity seekers."

PARITY WITH EMPIRE URGED BY AMERICAN

Stimson Also Offers Plan for Japanese in Statement to Press

London—(AP).—Immediate parity with Great Britain was proposed today by Col. Henry L. Stimson, head of the American delegation to the five power naval conference, who in a lengthy statement to the press, epitomized American naval limitation aims and ideals and related the points on which progress has been made.

While Colonel Stimson's statement merely said "our delegation has made suggestions," it was known to have been published with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald's knowledge and was understood to carry with it British acquiescence.

Of Japan it was said "suggestions" had been made which "would produce an 'even all' relation satisfactory to us and we hope to them. In conformity with our relations in the past it is not based upon the same ratio in every class of ships."

Colonel Stimson, concluding, made reference to the French-Italian naval relationship problem, by many considered the hardest, but the conference has to crack, saying:

"We have not made proposals to the French and Italians, whose problems are not as directly related to ours that we feel it appropriate at this time to make suggestions to them. Settlement of Italian and French problems is essential, of course, to the agreement on parity."

The effect of the statement in conference circles could not be underestimated. It was accepted as denoting the most tangible progress thus far vouchsafed by any delegation and as perhaps too sanguinely indicating basis of agreement between the three largest powers represented at the conference.

WORK ON TREATY SOON

Predictions were heard here that within two weeks the conference could begin the work of drafting a naval limitation treaty. There was even talk of conclusion of its labors by Prosecutors in each of the four cases were in court to identify her. They said they knew her by numerous aliases and identified her by her own hair, her first offense, according to the testimony, was in 1920.

Try To Find New Way To Fight Crime

Chicago—(AP).—New steps were under way today to correct crime conditions. Conditions which Col. Robert E. Ransdell, head of the association of commissioners called for ten and improved, and which State's Attorney John A. Stanssen admitted were worse than that.

The association members today were to have the problem outlined to them by the present Ransdell. With the situation presented, a plan of action as to be worked out.

"Present conditions cannot be permitted to continue," Colonel Ransdell said. "The time for resolute action and recommendations is past. Immediate definite must be made."

These men, Jerry Cotter and George Campen, have been formally charged with the slaying of William Healy, who named them as his assailants but who later refused to identify them when they were brought before him as he lay dying.

"Machine Gun Jack" McGuinn of the "Capone mob" and his pal, Tony Accardo, were released as suspects in the slaying of Julius Rosenheim, extortionist and informer, shot last Saturday. An examination by a small arms expert revealed that Rosenheim was killed by bullets from a different type weapon than carried by either McGuinn or Accardo. Charges of carrying concealed weapons, however, remained against the two.

SAYS HYPOCRISY RULES
Congress Should Leave Enforcement to States,
Lower House Told

Washington—(AP).—Predicting the destruction of the powerful Republican party if it continues to "sell its soul to the financial drys," Representative Beck, Republican, Pennsylvania, today declared in the house that prohibition was like a cancer "eating away the moral fibre of the American people."

Beck, a former solicitor general of the United States, proclaimed throughout the country as an authority on constitutional law, declared that if the Republican party becomes "the party of prohibition" it will perish.

"The Republican party," he asserted, "cannot hold power a larger number of self-protesting men and women, to whom the enforcement of prohibition is a moral affront. It cannot be half wet and half dry."

Beck said that prohibition had produced a collective hypocrisy which would spread only the more as increased efforts to enforce the dry laws.

While the Pennsylvania state little immediate possibility of repeal of the eighteenth amendment, he suggested that living generations were given the power to determine whether its provisions should be extended and in what manner.

"Each living generation," he said, "can determine for itself whether they will pass affirmative legislation to enforce the eighteenth amendment or leave it without enforcing statutes."

LEAVE METHODS TO STATES

"Even if this were not so," he continued, "Congress could, without any violation of the constitution, reach the conclusion that the methods of enforcement and the actual enforcement of the eighteenth amendment were left to the states."

"When the American people thus recognize that the non-enforcement of the eighteenth amendment is a power is not necessarily a challenge to the constitution, they will in due time wholly sweep away that monstrous compound of hypocrisy and folly, the Volstead law, and upon its ruins build afresh. They will recognize that the normal use of light wines and beer not only does not lead to intoxication, but promotes temperance by preventing hard drinking and the use of narcotics."

Beck touched upon various points of the report of the law enforcement commission and referred briefly to the recent speech of Representative Ford, Republican, New Jersey, roundly attacking the manufacture of home brew and wine.

Discussing the preliminary utterances of the enforcement commission, the Pennsylvania senator said that the enforcement of prohibition is not a matter of life and death, but a matter of the soul. He said that the enforcement of prohibition is not a matter of life and death, but a matter of the soul.

Beck said that no one who knew him would challenge his deep reverence for the constitution and noted that he had given his best energies to the cause of defense.

"I am not prepared to say that even an amendment to the constitution forecloses controversy upon any subject or that it is unpatriotic to challenge its wisdom."

"We are constantly reminded by the fatal dry that to question the wisdom of the eighteenth amendment is a challenge to the constitution itself," he said. "I deny it. The wisdom of the law is so if the conditions were reversed."

"Certainly," he continued, "the leaders of prohibition showed scant respect for the constitution when they wrote this illegitimate amendment into that noble instrument and thus destroyed its perfect symmetry and turned a wise compact of government into a mere police code."

"Certainly, they had scant respect for the constitution when they thus destroyed its basic principle of home rule and in this matter of daily habit, relegated the sovereign states to the ignominious position of mere police provinces."

Beck said that even in Russia where "there has never been anything more ruthless, despotic, and cruel than the Russia of the Soviet regime," prohibition was not made effective.

HOLD MAN FOR ATTEMPT TO SLAY GAME WARDEN

Oshkosh—(AP).—Frank Schubert, 45, Berlin, Wis., was in jail here today in default of $3,000 bond on a charge of assault with intent to murder Albert Dunbar, Oshkosh, a state game warden.

After escaping the warden yesterday he appeared voluntarily at the Berlin police station yesterday before Municipal Judge A. H. Gotsch. Preliminary hearing was set for Feb. 14.

Dunbar, arresting Schubert yesterday at Ureka dam, on the Fox river near here, dropped one of his gloves. He stooped to pick it up, when he arose again, he faced Schubert's revolver. Backing away, Schubert tripped, and as he lost his balance the warden fired for him. Schubert fired, the warden said. The shot grazed Dunbar's head. Another warden nearby came to the aid of Dunbar but was also brought in the range of Schubert's gun. Dunbar had disarmed Schubert and the second game warden was unarmed. Dunbar was attempting to arrest Schubert for illegal spearing of fish below the dam.

SEE PHIL LA FOLLETTE ON PROGRESSIVE SLATE

Milwaukee—(AP).—Three hundred Milwaukee and neighboring Progressive Republicans are expected to attend a conference in the Plankinton hotel here tonight which may elect a candidate for governor. The La Follette candidate for governor, Phil La Follette, son of the late Senator Robert Marion La Follette, Sr., and brother of Senator R. M. La Follette Sr., have been endorsed by several groups.

Gustave Dick, president of the county committee, said the conference would get no farther than a preliminary endorsement. "All that is to be done is to get members of the Progressive party to the La Follette campaign," he said. "It is not a matter of life and death, but a matter of the soul."

Beck said that no one who knew him would challenge his deep reverence for the constitution and noted that he had given his best energies to the cause of defense.

16 Dead And 5 Missing In Utah Coal Mine Explosion

NINE CAUGHT IN DISASTER ESCAPE DEATH

Officers Have High Hopes of Rescuing Other Entombed Workers

Salt Lake City—(AP)—Five of the 16 men who were rescued from the Standard Coal company's mine at Standard, Utah, were rescued alive today.

With 16 bodies located in the mine, which was swept by an explosion late last night, the fate of five men remained undetermined this morning. Four other men came out of the mine after the explosion, of the total of 20 who were working on the night shift.

The five rescued this morning had barricaded themselves against the deadly fumes of the carbon monoxide gas and had not suffered any ill effects.

The No. 1 slope where the rescued men were found was reported to have been free of gas.

With the mine cleared of the gas fumes, restoration of the ventilating system and with very little debris thrown down by the explosion, it was said the rescuers did not find their way in the mine seriously impeded. The deaths so far disclosed are assumed to have been caused by gas fumes.

A strong possibility was seen that the remaining five men might also be rescued alive. Causes of the terrible blast was not determined.

DIES ATTEMPTING RESCUE
Andy Dougherty, said the explosion was deafening and that the walls of the tunnel crumbled. He said T. L. Pritchett, one of the men found dead, was working in the main tunnel of the mine with Rubio, Danasky, Pritchett and the other man who was rescued alive, but when the explosion occurred he dashed down into the mine to rescue his brother, F. H. Pritchett, and never returned. His body was found later by the rescuers.

Dougherty said that in their flight from the mine, Rubio, Danasky and he were forced to crowd between piles of debris shaken from the walls of the cavern by the blast. He said gas fumes immediately filled all parts of the mine.

Rescue crews recruited from the day workers immediately rushed into the mine to search for those entombed and the air system, damaged by the blast, was again placed in working order and soon cleared the mine of gas.

Four of the eight workers still in the mine were working in a compartment which officials said would not likely escape the fumes.

State mine officials and officers of the Standard Coal company, owners of the mine, left Salt Lake City immediately for the scene of the disaster and assumed charge of the rescue crews. As news of the blast spread, relatives of the victims gathered and watched with anxious eyes as the bodies were carried from the mine.

LAWYERS IN ARGUMENT IN ALIENATION CASE

John A. Lonsdorf and Abraham Sigman, local attorneys, were at Manitowish Friday where they argued before Circuit Judge Edward Voight in the case of Otto Sommers, New London, versus William Riese, Black Creek. Sommers sued Riese for alienation of his former wife's affections and a jury in circuit court here recently awarded Sommers $1,100 damages. Judge Voight presided in the case. Mr. Lonsdorf asked to have the jury's verdict set aside while Mr. Sigman asked for confirmation of the verdict.

End Bunion Pain Forever

No Need to Suffer Another Day Those Agonising Torturing Pains

There is one simple yet inexpensive way to reduce inflamed, swollen toe joints and get them down to normal, and that is to apply Moore's Emerald Oil night and morning, and people who suffer from such enlargements would be wise to reduce them before they reach a more or less chronic stage.

As any first class druggist for an original two ounce bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) and refuse to accept anything in its place. It is such a highly concentrated preparation that two ounces last a long time, and furthermore if this wonderful discovery does not give you complete satisfaction you can have your money refunded.

Special note: People who want to reduce swollen or varicose veins should get a bottle of Emerald Oil at once. By applying night and morning as directed they will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and lumps are reduced to normal.

RETAIL DIVISION TO DISCUSS JOINT EVENTS

The retail division of the chamber of commerce will meet in the chamber offices at 930 Monday morning to discuss monthly business matters. H. A. Gloumians will report on the series of cooperative events, proposed by a special committee of the division.

Ex-Harvard Man Nabbed For Threat

Boston—(AP)—A 25-year-old former Harvard student, Allan E. Burke, was held today on a warrant charging him with being the author of a $5,000 blackmail threat aimed at the debutante daughter of Donald McKay Frost, Boston lawyer.

Investigation by police and private agencies with the surveillance of Burke and his associates the past week, led to his arrest late last night. The arrest of other persons, including a woman, police said, is expected.

On Jan. 24 the Frost family received a letter threatening that the character of Mary McKay Frost, 18-year-old daughter, would be attacked unless $5,000 was left in a sealed spot. No money was left and police watched in vain.

A telephone call, another letter and two telegrams the next day repeated the demand, warning "last chance tonight between 8 and 9. Newspapers are ready for story."

The signature "X" was attached. A decoy package was left but no one tried to secure it.

Police said a telegraph operator at a hotel had identified Burke as the man who sent one telegram. A handwriting expert compared his writing with the blackmail letter and his arrest followed.

Burke was dropped from Harvard at the end of his freshman year in 1924 for failure in his studies and in recent years has been an interior decorator and sold antiques. His home is in Brookline and his family is socially prominent.

During the past five years occasional "picture blackmail" plots against several society debutantes have been investigated without success.

NOMINATION PAPERS FILED FOR RICHARD

Nomination papers for Alderman George T. Richard, were filed with Carl Becher, city clerk, Wednesday. Mr. Richard will be a candidate for reelection from the Third ward.

CITY SEEKS BIDS FOR RESURFACING, PAVING STREETS

Curb Also Will Be Installed Along Memorial-dr Next Summer

Bids for installation of the curb on Memorial-dr, preparatory to the resurfacing of the boulevard by the American Legion, and bids for resurfacing paving of several Appleton streets will be sought by the city following a decision reached by the common council Wednesday evening.

The streets to be paved include Rankin-st from Pacific-st to Commercial-st, South-st from Mead-st to South Court, Hancock-st from Rankin-st east 243 feet, and Brookway-st from Oneida-st to Durkeest-st. Ordinances prohibiting parking on the west side of N. Oneida-st between Midway and Washington-st, on the north side of Midway between N. Appleton and N. Oneida-st, on Kimball-st west of Alameda, on the south side of Kimball-st from Alameda to Oak-st, and on Oak-st from Lawrence to Kimball-st will be drawn up by the city attorney.

A suggestion that the rental of the dump ground in the town of Harrison be discontinued, thereby saving the city $65 a month, was referred to the board of health. Alderman W. H. Vanderheyden, who introduced the resolution, contended that few people use it, and the $65 a month might better be saved. Alderman Mike Steinhilber objected to its discontinuance, declaring that "rats and cats could not be placed in the city dumping grounds."

The applications of Philip Crabbe and C. P. Grove to have their properties placed in the local business district were denied.

Established grades on South-st and Hancock-st were presented by the city engineer, the revised traffic ordinance was accepted, Eighth and Lawrence-sts were opened to the Fuhrmann Canning company, the city engineer was instructed to investigate the condition of the sewers on Appleton-st, and a request from Chief George McGillin for changes in hydrant location was referred to the fire and water commission.

Licenses were granted to William Schmiede, house moving; Brin theatre; and Edward De Wall, Class A permit. The claim of M. Stinbach for injuries received in an auto accident was referred to the judiciary committee, and the claim of M. E. Weyenberg for damage to his sidewalk during the installation of the Brewster-st sewer was referred to the street and bridge committee.

BANK OFFICIALS HERE ON INSPECTION TOUR

Harry Walker, Chicago bank inspector, and three assistants are making their semi-annual inspection of the First National bank. They arrived here Thursday and expect to finish their audit and inspection by Saturday afternoon.

Pay Chicago Workers But Not In Cash

Chicago—(AP)—The city today began paying off some bills and some employees in scrip.

Tax-anticipation warrants, bearing the signatures of Mayor Thompson and Deputy Controller Victor Peterson, were made available to policemen, firemen and other employees who expressed a willingness to take their back pay in this manner.

There was no general issuance of the warrants, however. Those who wanted to be paid with scrip were obliged to appear at the comptroller's office and request them. The problem of cashing the warrants rested entirely with those who received them. In cases where employees found themselves financially able to retain the tax warrants they possessed, paper calling for 6 per cent interest.

Although it was pay day for school teachers, they received no money. H. Wallace Caldwell, president of the school board, is in New York City seeking money to meet the school pay rolls. The total now due the teachers, who have not been paid since Christmas eve, exceeds $4,450,000.

Issuance of tax anticipation warrants in the manner begun today has been opposed by the Strawn citizens' relief committee on the grounds that warrants distributed in small denominations probably would be sold by needy employees at a discount thereby hurting the city's chances of selling large blocks of warrants to the committee's rescue pool or to banks.

Several department stores have indicated they will accept the warrants at face value. It also was believed that many banks will do likewise as courtesies to veteran clients, and that others will arrange to make cash loans with the warrants as security. City Controller George K. Schmidt was to confer today with Herbert C. Heller, head of a New York investment house specializing in tax warrants. Heller was understood to have a plan for disposal of warrants in large blocks, but it was not indicated what it was.

"Death Valley's" Desert Gold Mine Only Publicity

Los Angeles—(AP)—The mysterious desert "gold mine" of fabulous wealth which western legend for year has credited to the ownership of "Death Valley Scotty," picturesque survivor of the bonanza days, floated off into the land of burst bubbles today as the result of a "confession" by Scotty himself.

At the same time Scotty admitted that recent report that he had lost $6,000,000 in the stock market didn't have as much solid reality about it as some people thought, although he did say that he was broke, washed up and cleaned out as the result of security speculation.

For 40 years Scotty, whose real name is Walter Scott, has lived the life of an uncrowned king in the barren southern California desert. The story that he had a hidden gold mine in the desert gained wide credence from the spectacular fashion in which he made excursions into the outer world, spending money lavishly.

This cloud of wealth he dissipated here last night with the simple statement that "that ain't gold mine and there never was."

At the same time he asserted that his source of money had been A. M. Johnson, millionaire retired insurance man from Chicago.

Scotty had just returned here from Chicago, where he interrupted a projected trip to Paris with the statement that he had gone broke in the stock market. He gave his red tie a flick and waved his ten gallon hat and told all within hearing distance that he had been living on other people's money and was, in truth, Death Valley's press agent par excellence. He took occasion to laugh at jealous miners who hired Indians to track him across western waste lands in the hope of locating his fabulous gold mine.

Johnson, Scotty's close friend, was band. O. F. Nixon is principal of the east and Charles Cole of the West Green Bay high schools.

LAWRENCE GRADUATE PROMOTED ON WORLD

Miss Mary Bennett, graduate of Lawrence college and former instructor in English, has recently been promoted to the assistant editorship of the woman's page of the Sunday edition of the New York World. For the past six months Miss Bennett had been writing special articles for the World and serving as head of a department.

The Lawrence graduate, who was editor of the Lawrentian in 1925, has been engaged in journalistic work in New York for three years. For a time she worked on a syndicate news service and then took a position with the Harmon Foundation, which was followed by her appointment to the staff of the World.

Most of our energy comes from the union of hydrogen and carbon with oxygen—or burning.

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THIS Cake Recipe?

Cream $\frac{1}{2}$ cup butter and add gradually the beaten whites of 5 eggs. Sift $2\frac{1}{2}$ cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking powder and $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt and add alternately with $\frac{3}{4}$ cup milk to the first mixture. Beat well and bake in a shallow cake pan for about 40 minutes in a slow oven.

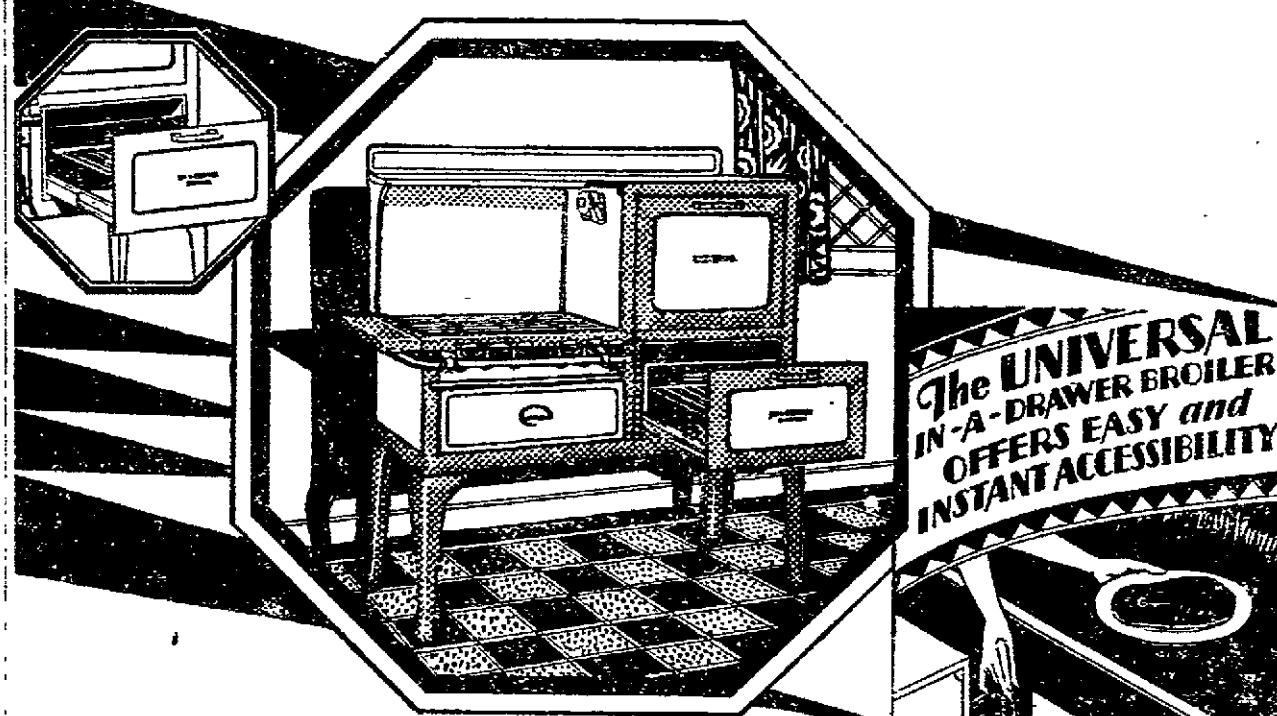

You can readily see that sugar is missing from this cake recipe. To be exact—one and one-half cups. What a failure you'd have if you followed the recipe with this single but important ingredient missing.

Too often we are inclined to leave sugar out of our meals. As a result the food is not palatable. This is true of certain vegetables. Yet you can make them appetizing by adding a dash of sugar in cooking. For example, tomatoes, peas, carrots and spinach taste much better when a pinch of sugar is added. Also many stewed fresh or dried fruits are made more palatable by including sugar.

When nourishing foods are pleasant to the taste, you naturally eat what your system requires. Since sugar adds flavor to such foods why not cultivate the practice of using it as a flavorer? No doctor will prescribe against this suggestion. Neither will he object to the serving of simple puddings, cakes and custards for desserts. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

AND HERE IS THE STORY

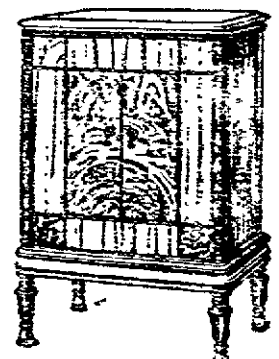

Victor Radio engineers—the most experienced and the most expert in the science of sound-reproduction—have made purity of tone possible and practical. They had to produce a radio sensitive enough to reach vast distances; selective enough to extract from the air precisely the entertainment you choose; powerful enough to bring this entertainment to you as if it were performed in your own home; simple enough for absolutely accurate, effortless operation. But—most emphatically—Victor adopted the slogan, "There can be no compromise with purity of TONE!"

VICTOR SUCCEEDED — MAGNIFICENTLY

New Dirigible Hangar At Akron Makes Own Weather

Akron, O.—If you ever feel so dissatisfied with the weather that you'd like to make some of your own, all you need to do is build a dirigible hangar such as the Goodyear-Zeppelin has built here for the enormous dirigibles it is constructing for the navy.

This hangar, which is 190 feet high and 1100 feet long and contains 45,000,000 cubic feet of atmosphere, makes its own weather without any regard to what is going on outside. C. H. Barnstorf, Goodyear photographer, discovered this the other day when he went to the hangar to take some photographs. It was a bright, sunshiny day—hardly a cloud in the sky. He stepped inside the hangar—and found that it was raining. Rain, rain, and there was a dense fog. When Barnstorf had persuaded himself that he wasn't seeing things he asked the company's scientists for an explanation. And he learned that the hangar is so big that it creates its own weather conditions inside. On this particular occasion, warm and moist air had been rising from the floor, where men were at work, to the distant ceiling, where the air was cold. There the moisture condensed and fell to the floor as rain and as the thing kept up the air became full of moisture and there was a fog in addition.

Goodyear-Zeppelin scientists say that it could snow inside the hangar in just the same way. And if the whirling, unaccountable air currents were to grow a bit stronger, the hangar could house a severe wind-storm when the air outside was perfectly still.

POPULARITY OF DELEGATES BEST PEACE ARGUMENT

England Is Amazed by Pep and Efficiency of Organization

BY MILTON BRONNER
London—Whatever may be said about them later, when the great Naval Conference gets to grips with very serious problems, there is no doubt now but that the American naval delegates, their wives, the marine messengers and the corps of girl stenographers have been a knockout.

It is as though the British government, public and press were determined to return to the Americans in full measure the friendliness Americans showed to Prime Minister MacDonald when he came to Washington to confer with President Hoover and lay the foundation for the present parity. There was a chic reception and a big crowd when the delegates landed at Plymouth. There was a governmental reception and a big crowd when they landed in London. And then the powerful London press took up the tale. For all it had to say, there might have been no other delegations at the conference. Picture pages were filled with photos of the delegates, their wives, their stenographers, their marines. Unlimited space was given to the doings of the group.

STIMSON IS POPULAR
Henry Stimson, Secretary of State and head of the American delegation, made a hit with the two writers at once. They stress "I three things about him: his friendly smile; his lack of swank; his boundless energy. They were amazed at a delegation chief who got up at five in the morning, traveled the long way from Plymouth to London and then, instead of calling it a day, set forth to pay a three-hour call on Premier MacDonald.

One of the leading gossip writers in London said: "I guess the other delegates will know these Americans by their Christian names round the conference table before it is all over, and that ought to help solve a few naval problems."

The Daily Chronicle, great London liberal organ, said: "America's first contribution to the Five-Power Naval Conference is a background of pretty girl secretaries—no count a very nice argument toward peace. Seventeen of these arrived with the delegates in London yesterday and have excited immediate comment for their beauty, tact and efficiency. They appear to know as much about ships as about dress."

"DEVIL DOGS" NOTED
The ten United States Marines also came in for attention in the papers. The reporters commented on how silent and non-committal these chaps were, and guessed that they must be the tallest and handiest men in the American service.

So efficiently had advance preparations been made for them that when the American delegation arrived they found a bit of London transformed into a bit of Washington. The fifth and sixth floors of the well Ritz Hotel and the fourth floor of the equally well Mayfair Hotel have been taken over by the United States. A private line runs between the two headquarters. More than forty typewriters, a mimeograph machine, three telegraph machines communicating directly with the cable companies to America, and a private telephone switchboard, have all been set up. Rooms are carefully labeled— "Stenographers," "Mimeograph," "Telegrams," "Secretariat," "Press Room."

IT'S LUXURIOUS LIFE
The chief delegates are living in luxury on the fifth floor of the Ritz in suites done up in Louis XVI style. Their rooms face out on Green Park and offer a view of Buckingham Palace.

In addition to the London hotel suites, Warren House, Stanmore, has been leased and here the American delegates may, if not too industrious, spend their week-ends with golf and entertaining delegates from other countries.

"I wanted to start a book shop, but I've decided there's more chance for self-expression in a tea room."

great governmental reception in honor of the delegates. There were about a thousand invited guests, including famous statesmen, noblemen, diplomats, generals, admirals, and many famous women.

A MEETING ARRANGED

Viscountess Astor, in her impulsive way, grabbed this correspondent of NEA Service and Appleton Post-Crescent.

"Is Senator Joe Robinson here?"

"Yes."

"Well, I want to meet him."

"That's easy."

A moment later the correspondent halted the senator:

"There's an American woman here who wants to meet you."

The senator frowned. He is a bit tired of being "met."

"She happens to be Lady Astor."

His face at once was wreathed in smiles:

"And, say, I want to meet her."

The presentation was made.

"Hello, you old Democrat from Arkansas! Gee, it's good to see a real live Democrat over here."

"I wonder," said Senator Robinson, shaking hands heartily,

"whether I can return the compliment?" Over here you are a Tory.

M. P., but I reckon down in Virginia you are still a Democrat."

MACDONALD CRITICIZED

Captain Wedgwood Benn, Secretary of State for India and member of the British delegation to the conference, joined the party:

"I say Captain," said Lady Astor seriously, "I see the Premier is making the same mistake Woodrow Wilson did."

"Meaning?" queried Benn.

"The President took with him to the Versailles treaty meeting only members of his own party."

The Premier is doing the same thing.

"President Hoover is wiser. You see he has sent over Senator Robinson, here, Democratic opposition leader in the Senate."

"Well," said Benn, smiling.

JANUARY LOSS BY FIRE IS $22,064

Loss in Corresponding Month in 1929 Was Only $802, Chief Reports

The fire loss in Appleton in January was $22,064.26 as compared with only $802.76 loss in the same month in 1929 according to the monthly report of Fire Chief George P. McGowan. The department answered 24 alarms in January as against 25 in January, 1929. Following is a list of causes which resulted in alarms in January: chimney fires, 5; escaping smoke, 2; spontaneous combustion, 2; rubbish fires, 3; cigarette fires, 2; and one each for false alarm, overheated steam pipe, defective wiring, overheated stove, sparks from chimney, leaky carburetor, overheated stack, short circuit in automobile wiring, oil heater and unknown.

"Let's add you. Then our delegation will have wit and beauty."

"No, I am serious," retorts Lady Astor. "I am going to say some sharp things about it in the House of Commons."

"That won't be the first time," said Benn, and made a break to get away.

A few AT A TIME

Hills Bros. Coffee is "done to a turn" because only a few pounds at a time pass through the roasters. That's Controlled Roasting—Hills Bros.' patented, continuous process—and it creates a flavor no other coffee has.

Fresh from the original vacuum pack. Easily opened with the key.

Talks To Parents

A CLEAN CONSCIENCE
By Alice Judson Peale

The child's bedtime prayers are good mental hygiene.

He tells a benevolent God what ever mood he is in, heavy on his conscience, or a sure of God's love he asks to be forgiven and he asks a blessing on all those he loves.

No matter how naughty he has been, such a prayer, sincerely spoken, turns him into a good boy once more, and he sleeps the sleep of the innocent, to awake in the morning with a fresh start on a new day.

In homes where children do not say such little prayers, mothers must assume the happy task of seeing that their children sleep at night with a clean conscience and the feeling that they are good.

If the child has been naughty, it is better to have him say a quiet, little prayer, it becomes quite naturally a time for confession with the child easily unburdening himself of troublesome thoughts and anxieties.

The wise mother does not throw away this opportunity. She goes in the way to keep in touch with her child's inner life, with the emotional currents which he himself has actions and which move him in any thing, determine what kind of man he will become.

At this time more than at any other, she is sparing in her censure, affectionate, understanding and cheerful.

Nothing is more destructive to the child's wholesome development than a burden of guilt carried over from day to day. Nothing is more constructive than a clean conscience which has done during the day what it is able at bedtime.

The child who is truly happy and with a conscience clear of guilt, has made mistakes, and he knows he is a good boy, and he is far as it is humanly possible, true to his faith in him and in God.

THE LONDON CONFERENCE

The London conference is making favorable progress. It is naturally a slow and tedious undertaking. Policies of long duration, fortified by experience and by viewpoints that do not always take into consideration the changing world and the attitude and tendencies of other peoples, are on the program for alteration. The conference table is the place to adjust these differences, and invariably they yield to investigation and discussion. That is what is happening at London.

One nation places the major emphasis on battleships for national defense, another on cruisers of a certain type, and still another on submarines. When their values and uses are placed under the microscope, and the motives that lie behind their uses freely explained, their relationships and the whole subject may appear in a different light. Thus, we find Great Britain and the United States in near accord on the battleship and submarine, and France and Italy reported as willing to consider a modification of their former partiality to the submarine. Even abolition of this type of vessel is gaining headway.

A solution of the differences between Italy and France over naval ratio is being worked out along lines that had perhaps not occurred to any of the participants before the conferees got together. It involves the acceptance of a principle conceding the Italian wishes, but which preserves relatively the status quo. The apparent controversy over the issue of tonnage reduction and regulation by categories or global limits is showing signs of adjustment.

On the whole, while there is little of definite action to report, it is evident that much is being accomplished and that a spirit of accommodation and a sincere desire to produce results that the world will applaud exists among the delegates. The spirit thus far revealed is excellent, and may be regarded as distinctly liberal and progressive as contrasted with reaction. Moreover, the atmosphere among the conferees is optimistic, and this must be regarded as a good sign.

The world should pay little attention to the reports which seek to discredit or belittle what is being done, or which attempt to judge it as a failure in advance. This always happens during an event of the kind. Some of the reports are propaganda, some are from lack of information, some from overworked imagination and a few are purely malicious. The dispatches of special correspondents are to be particularly watched, unless they represent a great and reputable press organization like the Associated Press. When there are real developments and real news to give to the world, its writers will report them. They are the best that are to be had for capability and accuracy, and they are seldom if ever "beaten" by representatives of single newspapers. There is not the slightest reason up to this time for despairing of tangible and notable results from the London conference. On the contrary, the indications are decidedly hopeful.

MIGRATING AMERICANS

Florida has come back. Or to put it another way, the tourists have come back. They started early this winter, and have been pouring into the summery state in numbers nearly half as large again as they did a year ago. Florida-bound trains are still crowded. Florida roads are crowded. Florida resorts are crowded. Florida real estate is looking up.

This indicates, among other things, that the nation as a whole hasn't been so hard hit by the stock crash as people imagined last fall. The tourist agencies substantiate this statement.

Foreign travel, especially travel to other sunny climes, is booming.

The Florida come-back, which is naturally paralleled by that of southern California and other states of the southern tier, was inevitable. History shows that northern races have always sought southern warmth and sunshine. They used to do their seeking in waves of immigration. Now, thanks to improved transportation facilities, they can achieve the main purpose by shifting with the climate, as birds do, returning north in the spring. Our southerners, more and more, are coming to practice the same system in reverse, going north in the summer, and thus preserving the balance.

MEXICO STILL TRUE TO FORM

The attempted assassination of Pascual Ortiz Rubio, new president of Mexico, on the occasion of his inauguration shows that the republic continues to run true to form. Force and violence still occupy a large part of the popular mind. Constitutional and responsible government are nebulous conceptions. There is a parallel, perhaps only mildly applicable and yet of some force, between the tenacity with which the South continues to substitute lynchings for constituted authority. It prefers to take the law into its own hands rather than have it executed by the government. It has been the South's conception of vengeance, protection and the preservation of honor. So, too, the Mexican's conception of political freedom and social gain lies in license to kill and usurp. He believes the road to his betterment lies in constant turmoil and revolution, and that violence is at the basis of human progress. Like the South, he cannot grasp the distinctive facts that underlie true progress and enlightenment.

The attempt upon the life of President Rubio was, it appears, purely political. It was like many assassinations which have preceded it in Mexico. Each one of them, in all probability, has retarded the growth of political and economic betterment, delayed reforms and operated against the true interests of the nation and its people. They are nine times out of ten pointless and aimless, merely reflecting the ignorance and destructive passion with which political questions are interpreted. Mexico needs peace and order more than anything else. It is only in such an atmosphere that her basic problems can be worked out. She must learn to stand before she can walk, and this her firebrands and a susceptible populace will not permit her to do.

UP TO OLD TRICKS

Mexico, tired of Soviet meddling with her affairs, withdraws her legation from Moscow and hands the Russian government a stinging rebuke. The particular cause of the action was the series of communist demonstrations before the Mexican embassies in Washington, Buenos Aires and Rio Janeiro. The Moscow authorities, Mexico maintains, were responsible for those demonstrations. The Mexican government says it has tried to maintain friendly relations with the Russian government, but the latter has made it impossible.

This action interests Americans from two angles. It is reassuring about Mexico, which many people in this country recently believed to be in active sympathy with Russian communism. It indicates that the Soviet crowd, in spite of protestations to the contrary, are still up to the same old tricks.

The statesmen at Moscow always insist that their government is misunderstood and abused, and try to give an impression that there is a general conspiracy abroad to wreck their political system and destroy Russia. There has been considerable unfairness to Russia, no doubt, but not so much as they suggest. Other nations show more and more disposition to give even Russian communism a chance to make good. But the Moscow leaders usually make it impossible, by interfering insolently in other nations' affairs and intruding their communism where it is not wanted. "Live and let live" is a principle that should work both ways. The other nations will be decent to Russia if she will be decent to them.

"Yom" is Hebrew for "day" and Yom Kippur means day of atonement. It is the tenth day of October and is observed by fasting and continuous prayer for 24 hours.

The building industry is said to be the second largest industry in the country, with an annual volume of business of approximately $5,000,000,000.

Egyptian carpenters possessed practically every tool used by modern members of the craft 3,500 years ago.

There are about 60,000 men in the army of Mexico at the present time.

The Post-Mortem

"Baldwin Appeals For Frankness From Labor," the papers tell us. Evidently the former premier has never spent a summer working with a construction gang.

It was considerable of the would-be Mexican assassin to wait until after the inauguration to play target with President Rubio.

An Open Letter to Father

Dear Dad,

It was very nice of you to invite us to go to Miami with you. However, you forgot to put a check in the letter you sent us. Of course you'll take care of that little detail as soon as this letter reminds you of it.

By the way, the same day your letter came we read a story about how the authorities down in Miami are going to open a drive to curb gamblers and their activities. Without trying to cast any reflections, we wanted to inquire if this had anything to do with your coming.

yours,

Anyway, the Racket Was Obvious

"Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," blared the radio in the apartment of a Chicago racketeer as police broke in to find him lying dead on the floor from bullet poisoning. The right idea, but a little late.

Dr. Wriston would like to see more unified action on the part of Lawrence college students. Threaten to start classes at seven in the morning. Dr. Wriston, or make everyone get in by nine o'clock. You'll have an organized student body in about ten minutes, clamoring loudly for its rights.

Maybe We're Dumb, But—

All the way from St. Paul, Minnesota, comes a poem by See Eff Tee. It told about the clamor for the old-style Kitzengammer. Now if someone will tell us what that is, we'll know better what to do with the poem.

SIMPLE FRONTAL SINUSITIS

Acute frontal-sinusitis is a common complication of acute coryza and in most cases the patient doesn't know he has it. The only way it manifests itself, perhaps, is in pain or ache in the brow on one side and this is made worse by coughing, by leaning or bending the head forward, by blowing the nose or by taking stimulants. Often it amounts to merely a sense of fullness or weight in the forehead or between the eyes. Sometimes there is greater congestion of the eyes on the affected side, or sensitivity to light, or flow of tears. But what of it, anyhow, since the best treatment is the same as for the coryza the sinusitis complicates? Nothing, only that the occurrence of these symptoms should serve as a warning to take proper care of the coryza. And what does that imply?

Oh, getting into bed and staying there at least 24 hours, while one revels in a hot mustard foot bath and maybe a light and not too nutritious diet and a lot of lemonade or other alkalizing beverage, hot or cold as one prefers.

It is chronic frontal sinusitis that calls for special treatment. Select a few of the symptoms of the acute form, have them over a period of weeks or months and you may call your trouble chronic. Especially if you notice at irregular intervals a sudden discharge of considerable mucus attended with a sudden relief of the discomfort or pain in the head.

Doctors have the bad habit of referring to these sinuses or air-passages in the skull as "accessory" sinuses. Even if they are accessory, why insist on it so much? In the automobile business they call all kinds of gadgets "accessories." Do the doctors mean to imply that the sinuses are of an actual use? Whatever they mean, I reckon everybody would understand what they're talking about if they were to omit the accessory part. Just sinuses would be perfectly clear. I suspect the doctors like to all that word accessory on the tongue when referring to a sinus for the good old reason—to bemuse the patient so he won't ask too many questions. You see, the doctors don't know very much about the sinuses yet. Doctors are slipshod and careless in speaking of "infected" sinuses too. By that they mean sinusitis, of course, for inflammation of one of these air-passages or cavities in the bone is inconceivable without infection, the invasion of the lining membrane by germs. But the term "infected" sinus is vague and maybe that's why the doctors are fond of it. It may mean a simple, more or less self-limited sinusitis, or it may mean suppuration, an abscess, which of course calls for immediate drainage, just as an ulcerated tooth (alveolar abscess) does for safety.

We doctors know a lot, yes we do and I make no bones about saying so. We can afford to drop the accessory business and also to discard the ambiguous "infected" and just say what we mean. If patients are disappointed, they've nowhere else to go, for nobody else knows half as much as we doctors do about sinuses and their troubles.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Marking Time
Kindly let me know whether you consider the medicine.....safe or beneficial. A friend of mine recommends it highly and declares it will cure any cough or cold without any harmful after effects. (G. H. J.)

Answer.—In my judgment any one who takes it is merely marking time. The medicine, I believe, is quite harmless. Some people prefer to while away the time taking such medicine, when waiting to see what they're coming down with, just as others like to chew gum in the long and tedious intervals between pauses.

PASS THE CHEESE, PLEASE

I have been told by a well known physician that cancer is caused by cheese. (G. M. H.)

Answer.—Dear me, I wish the well known physician would indicate which kind of cheese, because I am sometimes quite reckless and will try any kind the menu affords, when hungry.

No one knows the cause of cancer. Do not take seriously the imaginations of quack doctors, physical culture merchants, cult healers and hermits.

THE SUN IS GOOD ENOUGH
I have been hoping to see something in your column about the new lamps for giving the benefit of sunlight in the winter months. (G. O. W.)

Answer.—The benefits of sunlight are not to be had in any such lamp, though many lamps give, in limited measure, some of the benefits of sunlight. The value of such lamps has been exaggerated. I think no able bodied persons should fool with such a lamp, but for certain invalids or infants the light of such a lamp may be beneficial—under the physician's direction.

STARCH EATER

Will it hurt me to eat laundry starch? Mother says it will, but I crave it and it seems to agree with me all right. When I can't get starch I eat raw rice. (G. E.)

Answer.—It is harmless. Try eating wild or brown rice instead of the white kind. Or try eating seed wheat—that's mighty fine chewing. (Copyright John F. Dille Co.)

The Tinymites

By Hal Cochran

THE scarecrow held poor Clowdy out until the bunch began to shout, "Please put him down upon the ground so he will be with us. Then, in return, you can depend that we'll accept you as a friend." The scarecrow smiled and said, "All right! But don't start such a fuss."

"I will not hurt this little lad. In fact, my friends, I'm very glad that you are all here with me. We can have a heap of fun." But, instead of standing here to talk, I'd better see if I can walk. Then after I can walk a bit, I'll see if I can run."

He then put Clowdy on the ground and said, "I don't know where I'm bound, but anyway I'll step right out. Please catch me if I fall." He moved as carefully as could be and was a funny sight to see. The Tinies strained their necks to watch, he was so very tall.

The scarecrow wobbled here and there, but, frankly, didn't seem to care. "Do as I say," cried Scooty. "Put one foot right out in front. Then put the other forward, too. It is an easy thing to do." The scarecrow tried and promptly said, "This is a simple stunt."

He soon found he could walk real well and all the Tinies shouted, "Sweet! Now follow us. We'll show our hike and you can go along. We trust we won't take a spill. No doubt you'll find it quite a thrill." "All right," replied the scarecrow, "if you're sure naught will be wrong."

Upon the front seat he then jumped and promptly, on the pedals pumped. Three others hopped aboard and Copy wared his little hat. "Hey, wait for me!" the Clowdy cried. "I also want to take a ride." He took one sudden leap and on the handbars he sat.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Manhattan brevities: Central Park's bride paths are a trying place for athletic lovers, although the riders call it "going to a date."

Harlem now the negro's haven, was founded by Isaac B. Forest, Dutch ancestor of Lee De Forest, the radio man.

With two other young men and a Hawaiian servant, Blanding writes verses, paints pictures of fish and lives in a vast studio over a mid-town garage. The rug is the black and white hides of Holstein cows and for light, he has a candelabra made of two dozen oil cans, turned upside down in a wooden frame.

PROGRESS
The old Waldorf-Astoria was the first hotel on Fifth avenue historians say, to have a telephone in every guest room. Now comes word that every guest and public room in the new Waldorf is to be wired for television.

To set us investigating the present prospects of television. The most unofficial word is to this effect: "Receivers, capable of projecting the view of, say, a football game, with the sound of Graham McNamee's voice, have been developed, but the cost is about $3,000 per set, which means some of the costly intricacies must be eliminated before they can be offered to the public. Experimenters hope to be prepared to start service before the next Army-Navy game."

ETIQUETTE
A story is told about a woman who called up a Fifty-seventh street art dealer and asked, "Do you have any new Matisses in stock this morning? True or not, this indicates the demand for the paintings of the French modernist."

In view of this interest, the local art followers have wondered why Henri Matisse, who is 69 years old, has never visited America. Last year Valentine Dundersing, a dealer, saw the master at Nice and brought up the subject.

"I have not been asked to come to America," Matisse replied.
Dundersing told Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Pittsburgh's Carnegie Institute, about the conversation.

"Is that true?" asked Saint-Gaudens. "Then give me his address and I will invite him."

So Matisse will be one of the judges at the Carnegie Institute's international exhibition of paintings next September.
Another story is told about Matisse's son Pierre, who is married to Miss "Tini" Sattler of Cincinnati. He brings collections of his father's paintings to New York. One time he was dinner guest of a collector who has some of his father's more significant works. Other guests arrived to find Pierre on the front steps, locked out of the house. He had been ejected for criticizing some of the host's collections.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Forty-six years ago, a young Chinese student just graduated from Yale and vastly more interested in plants and flowers than in diplomacy, arrived in Washington and reported to his country's legation.

The minister put him to work translating state papers. Soon his dreams of being a scientist were lost and a career in statecraft arose in their place.

Yung Kwai is now counselor of the Chinese legation in the queer-shaped brick building on Nineteenth street. And he also has the distinction of being the oldest diplomat in Washington in point of service.

There have been many changes in Chinese politics since Yung Kwai first came to Washington. The Manchu dynasty was in power when he became a diplomat. Twelve Chinese ministers have come and gone, and under eight of these Yung Kwai has served.

COME AND GO

He has known them all. China's first minister to the United States was at one time Yung Kwai's teacher.

Tsai was China's representative in this country when Yung Kwai came down from Yale. And in the years he has been attached to the legation he has seen Tsai go out and Wu Ting Fang, Liang, Chang, Shih, Koo, Sze and Chao-Chu Wu—representative of almost as many different political faiths—preside over the little legation on Nineteenth street.

More of a westerner than an easterner is Yung Kwai—at least from the outside. His English is faultless. His hair is gray and he wears a closely-cropped mustache. He is intensely interested in things American and delights in talking about them. He has a remarkable sense of humor, and supplies innumerable anecdotes to conversation.

KNEW GRANT

Yung Kwai still remembers shaking hands with Grant, the first American president he ever met. As an attaché of the Chinese legation, he sat in a prominent place in the United States senate chamber when Grover Cleveland was inaugurated.

He has given no thought to retirement, although he says it might be a good idea since men like Sir Esmé Howard, the British ambassador, are doing so.

Senator Borah is a fan for the troubles of two radio comedians who talk with a negro dialect. He even used one of their adventures to make a point.

The Philippine question, he said, was a good deal like the situation of the pair when they started to organize a bank.

"One said," Mr. Borah related, "Everything is now all right; everything is set for the opening of the bank. All we need is some money."

"So it is with Philippine independence. All that is needed is needed is enough votes."

WAILING ADMIRALS OF ENGLAND WOULD BE HEARD AT ONCE

"View With Alarm" All Proposals to Reduce Country's Sea Strength

BY MILTON BRONNER

London — The Naval Conference may be a great success to some people, but so far as the old English dogs are concerned it is just a big mistake. Hardly had the various delegates settled down in their new quarters when there broke out a wailing chorus of protest from the Admirals. And, listening to this chorus, one realizes that Premier Ramsay MacDonald is not having easy sailing in his own country.

The English leaders will have the opposition of his country's die-hards—admirals, politicians and newspaper alike. And he will have the opposition of Lord Bridgeman whose stubbornness when head of the Admiralty, wrecked the Geneva conference.

It was a sullen lot of old sea-dogs who, sitting in their Pall Mall clubs some months ago, read of how MacDonald and President Hoover had agreed that the London Naval conference, insofar as America and Great Britain were concerned, should be conducted by civilian statesmen and not by professional sailors.

The silence of the Pall Mall clubs was broken finally by a lot of humpbacks and a lot of sniffs. Then all was quiet again on the London front and optimists thought it would remain so. The wailers, however, were merely biding their time.

LORD BEATTY PROTESTED

Admiral Lord Beatty, who commanded the battle cruisers in the Battle of Jutland and was afterwards First Lord of the Admiralty, led off in the House of Lords. He viewed with alarm the government's proposal to cut down cruiser strength—the very strength Great Britain needed to keep open the paths to her dominions and colonies.

Then Lord Bridgeman took up the sad song at a meeting. Everybody, he said, was anxious for the conference to succeed, but there must be a proviso that nothing should be done which would impair Britain's feeling of security and the power of the navy to protect the British Isles, the empire and its trade. The cruiser problem was the difficulty in 1927 and it remained the difficulty today. The First Lord of the Admiralty (his Labor successor, A. V. Alexander) had said recently that Britain was willing to reduce her cruiser strength to 50, but his reason for this proposal was most unconvincing. It was that the Kellogg Pact had made all the difference between 1927, when Britain wanted 70 cruisers, and the position now. But the danger of war in 1927 was no greater than at the present time. The Kellogg Pact only embodied in documentary form the desire of nations not to enter war. And if the Kellogg Pact was the only difference, why should it have such curiously different effects on different countries? The effect of it was that Britain was to reduce her claims by 20 cruisers, whereas other countries were preparing to increase their cruiser strength enormously. He viewed with alarm the absence of British naval experts and asked whether this might not be a sign that the government's policy was not one which naval experts might find difficult to swallow.

ADMIRALS DIDN'T AGREE

Vice Admiral E. A. Taylor, addressing a Tory political meeting, said the Kellogg Pact was no guarantee whatever that was a thing of the past. If it was so certain an assurance of future peace, why was not its chief author (United States) not giving up the execution of her latest naval program?

The speaker did not believe the Admiralty had agreed to 50 cruisers. He was certain that not a single admiral would say he was prepared to go to war with 50 cruisers as a maximum. Britain could not go on reducing her forces without sacrificing her national security. They were constantly told war was impossible between Britain and America. MacDonald and Hoover had said so, but they were mere pawns to be swept off the boards when the time came. If war between the countries was impossible, why all this anxiety on the part of America to achieve equality with the British Empire?

Then Admiral D. K. F. Becholt delivered himself of a letter to the Times, as all good Britons do when they "view with alarm." He spoke of Britain's present unhappy position.

And he concluded:

"We seem to have given up our sovereign right to decide what is necessary for national security and to have referred the strength of the Royal Navy to an international conference."

Admiral Percy Grant was equally low in his mind, because he sat himself down at the United Services Club and wrote a letter to the Post in which he said he viewed with alarm the fact that no British Admiral had been named as a full delegate to the Naval Conference. An Admiral, by his training and long experience, would be better able to grapple with the many points raised in discussion. He was very sure the country would have felt far more confident in any decision arrived at if an Admiral were a full delegate.

The British Navy League held an indignation meeting and adopted a resolution which said in part:

"That in order to ensure the defense and security of the coast lines and trade routes of the Empire, Great Britain should be free to fix her own standards of naval needs, and that in the five power naval conference no reduction in ships, tonnage or personnel should be agreed to, which, in any way, would lower the standard of imperial safety.

The sea-dogs having had their wail, the Morning Post, Tory organ which is the favorite reading matter of retired sea-dogs in their clubs, took up the sad story in its editorial columns. Commenting upon the fact that in deciding upon 50 cruisers, the Admiralty was asked to take into account such conditions as the Kellogg Pact, which did not exist in 1927, it said contemptuously:

"If that fact and all the other contraptions of World War Courts and Peace Agreements, regional and universal really worked—such, we gather, was the hypothesis which the Board of Admiralty was asked to consider. And, if they really did work inevitably and universally, possibly the British Empire could do with 50 instead of 70 cruisers. But on such a question of life and death we do not trust these hypotheses.

The Kellogg Pact is, after all, a mere pious aspiration . . . To found, therefore, our naval estimates on the Kellogg Pact is as if we were to found our domestic calculations on that other hypothesis—if all the world was apple-pie."

European Crown Princes Planning To Visit Japan

Tokio—(P)—Hears to two European thrones are expected to visit Japan this year and next, and the imperial household is making preparations accordingly. Visits of European royalty to this distant outpost of monarchy are comparatively rare, and the Japanese princes make the most of it when their peers do come.

Christian Frederick, eldest son and Prince Axel himself will come to Japan in 1931 with the consent of Denmark. Prince Knud, the king's second son, and Prince Axel, cousin of the king, are now making a leisurely journey to the Far East via Suez which will bring them to Japan March 19 for a stay of 10 days. Prince Axel, son of Prince Valdemar, the king's uncle, is accompanied by his wife, Princess Margaretha, sister of Princess Astrid of Sweden, who has become the Belgian crown princess.

Princess Astrid herself will come to Japan in 1931 with the consent of Denmark. Prince Knud, the king's second son, and Prince Axel, cousin of the king, are now making a leisurely journey to the Far East via Suez which will bring them to Japan March 19 for a stay of 10 days.

turn the visit to Belgium of the present emperor of Japan, then Crown Prince Hirohito, in 1921.

The emperor and the two crown princes are about the same age. Hirohito and Leopold will be 29 this year. Christian Frederick is two years older.

The last royal visitor to Japan was Prince Henry, duke of Gloucester, third son of King George of England, who came to Tokyo in May, 1929, to confer the order of the Garter on Emperor Hirohito. The Prince of Wales himself made a state visit to the Japanese imperial family in 1922, and Prince George, fourth son of King George, visited Japan in 1925 while serving as a naval officer with the British China fleet. The same year the Japanese imperial family entertained Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, and his consort, Princess Margaret.

Mix one teaspoonful of finely grated bread crumbs with one teaspoonful of grated Parmesan cheese, and season well with salt and pepper. Roll the cutlets in warmed butter, and then in the bread crumbs, and leave them for a few minutes, then dip them in beaten egg and again in the mixture.

Place a large lump of dripping or lard in a flat steppan and place it over the fire; when blue smoke rises, put in the cutlets and fry them until nicely and equally browned. The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE

© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE charmed circle of masculine admirers who were paying tribute to Barbara broke as Sue and Sarah came down the stairway.

Nancy Becker, slim and supple in net overskirt was a sullen sheen, came from another door at the same time.

"We're all here, and I'm starved. Let's eat," she said. "We aren't formal at the lodge at all, girls. But we do have a good cook and creamed chicken and sweet potatoes topped with marshmallows are fit for even Jack."

They were starting on the caramel pudding when suddenly a wind came up, high and wide and wild, and started to bang the glass doors which opened on the terrace. One of them, hitting the wall sharply, broke into a hundred pieces. The men jumped up instantly and closed them, and pulled the shutters which protected them. Rain came close on the wind and fell in great sheets.

"I knew it was coming," Jack said, sitting down again. "This is the kind of a night I like."

"We'll have big fires in all the fireplaces," Nancy told him. "And pop corn, and play bridge. Or you can dance if the radio stays in form, which it probably won't."

A ragged burst of lightning tore the dark sky. Barbara gave a little scream and clung to Jack, who patted her clinging hands as one would a frightened child's.

Nancy smiled tolerantly and superiorly. "I don't know where was anyone alive who still trembled when the heavens got busy. Sue, are you afraid?"

"Not a bit. I love it."

"So do I," Sarah agreed. "Nancy's eyes met Barbara's and the flash of hostile light from the pansy ones was piercing, it seemed to Sue, who caught it. Was Barbara after Harry, and was Nancy objecting, she wondered? In that case why didn't the girl lay Jack aside?"

"Let's go watch the storm. If you aren't afraid," Miles whispered. "There's a wonderful view from the alcove in the living room."

Sue and Miles drifted away, and presently Ted and Sarah came to the same window and then turned away.

"Don't go," Sue called. "There's lots of room and the view across the lake is gorgeous." She moved over to the window seat but she didn't look at the storm. She looked down at the great room with its crimson fire on the hearth and the big over-stuffed chairs and the sports and convenient tables and magazine stands. The alcove was low and she felt like someone in a box at the opera who watched the stage. The lights in the recess were not on, as they had spoiled the beauty of the storm.

It happened that Jack and Barbara, coming into the room, had no way of being attracted to the alcove group.

"Where's Harry?" Jack asked Barbara.

"Why, I don't know. I'm not his keeper."

"But you . . . never mind."

"But I do mind." She pretended to stamp one golden slipper.

"Well, Harry's my best friend and it seems to me he's being left in the cold pretty much. First Sue, and now you!"

"Oh-h-h!" Sue caught her breath. Then neither she nor Barbara meant anything in Jack's life and he thought she wasn't being nice to Harry. Well, she would show him. She saw Harry's round, large form coming across the floor, and leaning over the railing called softly: "Harry, come watch the storm with us."

NEXT: Jack apologizes to Sue.

Racine—(4)—Heirs of William Hiker, Sr., were richer by $60,000 today, the result of a ruling in county court by Judge J. Allan Simpson. He declared that a bequest for that amount "in the interests of the Christian religion" was "too broadly phrased for any court to administer."

Fat Man May Be Jolly, But He Is Target For Disease

Madison — "A fat man may be jolly but he deserves pity and help, rather than to be laughed at. Nature has made him the target of disease. He is more susceptible to pneumonia than the fellow who is thin and spare and diabetes lurks for his coming, just around the corner."

This is the opinion of the Educational Committee of the Wisconsin State Medical Society, expressed in a bulletin today. It declares that in people past the age of 30, the common cases of diabetes occur in those who allow themselves to get too fat. The prevention of the diabetic trouble will come by the care in eating and the improved exercise which maintain the weight at a strictly normal level. There is new and more urgent reason found year by year, why persons over 30 years of age should be very careful to remain within the normal limits of weight for their height.

In the treatment of diabetes, it is necessary to allow the patient to eat a sufficient amount of ordinary foods to keep up his weight and allow him to do whatever productive work he desires," declares the bulletin. "The diet which is now prescribed for diabetic patients is devised to furnish as little sugar as is necessary for the body and to make up the balance of food by the use of a large amount of fat. Since, however, even fat leads to the formation of some sugar in the body all the food must be measured and there is no food which the diabetic patient should eat in unlimited quantities. The important thing for the diabetic patient is not what he eats so much

SCHNEIDER BACKS GRADUATION PLANS

Congressman Offers Cooperation if Students Visit Capital

Congressman George J. Schneider, in a letter to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, Thursday commended the proposal to bring the county rural school graduates to Washington, D. C. next June for commencement exercises. The congressman pledged his cooperation and assistance and offered to help prepare plans for entertaining the delegation in Washington.

The congressman pointed out that Mr. Meating's plan is very feasible and that he thought it would be a very fine thing for the Outagamie county students to have this opportunity to visit the national capital. He said it is very likely that arrangements could be made for President Hoover to at least greet the group.

by any other method, it is entirely wasted. If the insulin is taken without careful measurement of the diet as well as the accurate measurement of the insulin, there are two types of dangers. First of these is that not enough insulin will be taken and the patient will become worse while thinking that he is taking proper care of himself. Another equally serious danger is that an excess of insulin will be used. This will cause several unpleasant symptoms and if the excess is large enough it may cause very serious complications. No cure for diabetes has yet been found, but when modern treatment is constantly followed the diabetic remains to all intents perfectly well."

CHILDREN'S BOARD IS NOT BEING SOUGHT HERE

Although nine counties of the state have established boards to investigate conditions of dependent children, as provided in the new children's code adopted by the last state legislature, there has been no movement started in Outagamie county as yet for the appointment of such a board. The nine counties are Ashland, Keshona, Waubesa, Winnebago, Shawano, Washington, Wood, Sheboygan and Fond du Lac. Four other counties, Douglas, Rock, Dunn and Calumet, are considering the matter. Duties of the board include investigating conditions surrounding mentally defective, dependent, delinquent and destitute children and taking action to secure for them full benefit of all laws enacted for the protection of children.

Soviet Makes Life Easy For Russian Prisoners

Moscow — CP — Prisons in Soviet Russia are trying to keep in step with all the latest campaigns and novelties which take place in the outside world. The department of correction also has been raising the standard of living of the prisoners, in part by abolishing the treatment of each other and particularly of new comers. In prohibiting profane language, in drawing their associates into cultural and educational work, and in various other ways.

The department of correction also plans to introduce a new system in the administration of affairs in Soviet prisons, whereby all cases of correction will be almost entirely self-governed. All of the duties, technical, intellectual and educational work will be managed by the prisoners themselves. Even the management of their labor in prison will be, in reducing the per cent of crime, in

A. A. L. TRUSTEES TO DISCUSS APPLICATIONS

Trustees of the Aid Association for Lutherans will meet in the insurance building Saturday morning, according to G. D. Ziegler, president. Applications for membership and claims will be submitted for consideration, which naturally will be greatly reduced under the new system. The new system will retain only control and supervision over the prisoner's general welfare and security.

For some time past prisoners in Russia have enjoyed certain unusual privileges, such as being given their temporary liberty during harvest time of their family crops, after which they voluntarily return to their cells.

CHIROPRACTIC SCHOOL HEAD IS QUARANTINED

San Antonio, Texas—(AP)—Guarded by two policemen, Dr. J. R. Drain, president of the Texas Chiropractic college, was marooned today in his own administration building, caught in a smallpox quarantine imposed by city health authorities. At the city hall it was said Miss Florence Bradley, college bookkeeper, was stricken with smallpox and the quarantine was declared because Dr. Drain refused to be vaccinated and insisted on remaining in his office at the school.

Dr. Drain said Miss Bradley was not at the college at the time she became ill. The president added that he was beginning a "period of dieting."

"No one can come in or go out," he said, "and I am not going to call on the policemen for aid."

State K. Of C. Bowling Tournament Begins Saturday

APPLETON TEAMS TO TAKE RUNWAYS ON OPENING NIGHT

City Has Entered 19 Booster Squads and 18 Regular Quintets

THE fourteenth annual tournament of the Wisconsin Knights of Columbus bowling association will be held on Elk club alleys beginning Saturday, and continuing through March 30, 1936. Tournament officers are Henry N. Marx, president, J. N. Schneider, vice president, and Lawrence Schreier, secretary and treasurer all of Appleton. Rules governing the tournament are that all games will start at 8 and 10 o'clock evenings, and bowlers coming late cannot bowl if they arrive after the fifth frame. Games will be bowled on an 80 per cent handicap.

Individual score will not count unless bowled with a team; when a man fails to show his average with a penalty of ten pins for each game will be used; anyone absent from three consecutive games will be dropped from competition and postponed games will be allowed only when both captains agree.

Each prize will be awarded at the end of the tournament; all bowlers must have rolled at least 60 games to be eligible to compete. All disputes and controversies of any kind will be submitted to the bowling committee and their decision will be final and binding.

Appleton booster teams will take the runways in the first round of bowling Saturday evening. There are 19 booster teams and 15 regular teams from Appleton entered in the tournament. Only ten teams will roll Saturday evening and they will start at 8 o'clock. The schedule for the first games will be announced Saturday.

Older Boys	2 4 .333
Red Streaks	2 4 .333

Only two games are scheduled for Saturday evening in the Older Boys basketball league of the Y. M. C. A. One of the battles has already been awarded by forfeit so that one game will actually be played and the outcome appears to be easy to dope.

The game to be played will show the Older Boys and the Hi-Y and indications are the latter aggregation will win. The game going by forfeit is the Wolverine-Goodwill game, the latter team having disbanded.

Roach Sport Shop also has another game to play with the Vocational school before the first half the schedule ends. If the Sports win then the standings will show a four way tie for the top position.

RESIGNATION ENDS ROWING DISSENSION

President of Oxford Crew Quits When Coaches Replace Him

LONDON.—(AP)—Dissension which threatened to hamper Oxford's preparations for the annual boat race with Cambridge apparently has been eliminated with the resignation of Alastair Graham, president of the Oxford Boat Club. The president of the club, similar to the captain of an American crew, is in absolute charge of the crew, its training and the appointment of coaches. J. Tinnie was chosen as Graham's successor.

The dispute began when the coaches, Dr. Mallan, Major Wiggins and A. S. Gerton favored Tinnie to replace Graham as the No. 7 oar rower in the Oxford boat. The president of the club, however, insisted upon retaining his seat in the boat and cited tradition to prove his right to it. Finding Graham unshakable, the coaches resigned in a body.

Graham then called a meeting of the captains of the college boats and after a discussion of the situation announced his resignation. Tinnie, brother of the famous Oxford blue of 1912, was immediately chosen as his successor. It is generally expected that Tinnie would reappoint the original coaches although he has authority to appoint a new staff.

MARQUETTE HOCKEY TEAM FORFEITS GAME

Houghton, Mich.—(AP)—Marquette won a hockey game by default when Marquette last night in the upper peninsula league when the Hancock team did a walkout in protest against a referee's decision.

The score was 2 to 1 in favor of Marquette when Hancock shot a goal. Almost simultaneously the referee rang his bell for a penalty. He disallowed the goal and Hancock left the ice, announcing that an appeal would be taken before the whole league.

Several fish fights enlivened the game, but they failed to reach the interesting stage because state police, in the audience, intervened each time.

Hartford, Conn.—Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., knocked out Al Racco, Hazelton, Pa., (G).

All Is Now Quiet On The National League Front

NEW YORK.—(AP)—The National league front is quiet again, all the way from Chicago to Brooklyn. Particularly in Brooklyn. An armistice has been signed by the opposing factions on that club and for 1936 Wilbert Robinson will be manager and Attorney Frank H. York, president.

The peace pact came about quite unexpectedly late the other night. The National league held a schedule meeting here and before anybody knew what it was about, the dove of peace had settled on the meeting, bringing peace to Brooklyn.

It was agreed to let Robinson lead the flock again this season and next.

U. OF M. MAY NAME MENTOR MONDAY

Members of Grid Squad Would Like to See Dutch Bergman Get Job

Copyright 1936, By Cons. Press Minneapolis, Minn.—(CPA)—Speculation concerning the identity of Minnesota's new head football coach is expected to end next Monday when the board of regents of the state university will make public the name of the man who will succeed Dr. Clarence W. Spears. The regents will meet on that date, and reports have it that at that time they will pass upon the gridiron mentor recommended for the position by the special coaches' committee and the senate committee on intercollegiate athletics.

Reports have it that the choice rests between Arthur (Dutch) Bergman, former halfback at Notre Dame, and Bernie Bierman, former halfback at Minnesota, who at present is head coach at Tulane university.

Bergman learned his football under Knute Rockne, and had his knowledge of gridiron sport broadened by acting as first assistant to Dr. Spears at Minnesota for the last three years. Bergman is the choice of all the football players, who recently petitioned President Lotus D. Coffman to appoint him head coach.

MANAGERS MEET TO ARRANGE CAGE MEETS

Stevens Point.—(AP)—To select teams which will compete in high school district tournaments, five meetings of basketball managers are to be held March 1.

Spooner, G. E. Donnan, northern Wisconsin tournaments; Clintonville, E. P. Rosenthal, Wisconsin River valley and northeastern Wisconsin; Platteville, F. V. Powell, western and southwestern Wisconsin; Madison, V. G. Barnes, southern and central Wisconsin; Milwaukee, G. A. Chamberlain, Lake shore.

ST. MARY SIX BEATS ST. JOE SQUAD, 7-0

St. Mary school's newly organized boys' hockey team won its first decisive victory of the season by swamping the St. Joseph team by a score of 7 to 0, all of the points being scored by Donald Jones, goal tender. The next game between the two teams will be played after school hours on the Third ward skating rink, Friday afternoon.

CARNERA HANGS K. O. ON INDIAN IN FOURTH ROUND

Cowboy Billy Owens Only Slightly Better Match Than Former Opponents

BY HERBERT W. BARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK.—(AP)—There are no figures to prove it, but the suspicion grows that Primo Carnera, Venetian carpenter, will be the highest paid athlete in the United States within almost as short a time as it takes to tell it.

The Giant Italian heavyweight knocked out Cowboy Billy Owens, Cherokee Indian from Guthrie, Okla., in three minutes and 25 seconds of fighting at Newark last night, and boosted his total earnings in America to somewhere between $40,000 and $45,000.

Carnera has made three ring appearances since he came to this country and knocked out three men in total ring time of five minutes, 22 seconds. That makes his earnings average approximately $5,000 for every minute he spent in the ring.

Owens made a better showing than either of Carnera's previous opponents although that may have been because the Italian was inclined to clown his way through the first round. The Italian knocked out Big Boy Peterson in 1 minute, 10 seconds of fighting in his first match here and Ko'd Elzeard Rioux of Canada in 47 seconds at Chicago last Friday night. Owens lasted 2 minutes, 25 seconds.

Eight thousand persons jammed their way into the Newark armory and watched Carnera abandon his usual formula of getting his man as quickly as possible. The ambulating Alp moved about the ring with great speed, boxing with Owens, wrestling his man around in the clinches when he wasn't blocking all the punches the red man aimed at him. Toward the end of the round Carnera sent home several hard punches to the head and body but Owens took them without flinching.

As the second round opened, Primo landed both hands heavily to the Indian's head. Owens' knees buckled and he went down on his shoulders as a heavy right caught him on the chin. The count of ten found Owens writhing on the floor and Carnera a victor in his third straight match.

Carnera weighed 276; Owens 220.

ORANGE TO MEET FOND DU LAC AT FONDY TONIGHT

Downstate Quint Favored to Win Valley Cage Championship

ESPIRITO the loss through graduation of Mullen, star guard and Humlecker, forward, Fond du Lac's Cardinals, leading the Fox River Valley conference with four straight victories, are favored to rout home as 1936 champions.

Although only four of the ten conference games have been played, the task of dislodging the Cardinals from their top position rests with the lowly Appleton quintet and with teams which have earlier in the campaign fallen victim to the attack of the present pace makers. Besides Appleton, Marinette, East and West Green Bay and Oshkosh remain on the Cardinal schedule. Marinette, East and Oshkosh are the most serious obstacles to be hurled.

Shelbygan's surprising pony quintet, with a record of three wins in four starts, has been wrecked by the graduation of four regulars. Manitowoc, Oshkosh, East and Marinette, clinging to third place in a quadruple tie, each have won two games and lost two. West is in seventh place with one victory in four starts, that over Shelbygan and Appleton has been unable to crash the victory column in four attempts.

Appleton meets Fond du Lac at Fond du Lac Friday. East Green Bay and Shelbygan, both revamped to plugs gaps caused by February graduation of stars—clash at Shelbygan. West Green Bay, without the services of Lysse, conference scoring leader until his graduation, invades Marinette. Oshkosh and Manitowoc play at Manitowoc to decide which shall remain in third place.

The East-West game, only conference contest of last Friday, found Wayland Becker of east gaining ground in the scoring race among the individuals but the first five leaders each advanced without effort on their parts because of Lysse's departure. Tolzman of Fond du Lac, Borgwardt of Marinette and Gelbraith of Manitowoc are prime contenders for the individual basket laurels won by Norbert Berg of Appleton last season.

Newark, N. J.—Primo Carnera, Italy, knocked out Cowboy Billy Owens, Guthrie, Okla., (2) Buck Weaver, Medicine Lodge, Kas., stopped Jack Shaw, South Orange, N. J., (4).

Fond du Lac and Milwaukee Bowlers Topple Pins on Thursday Schedule

OSHKOSH—(P)—The pins began to tumble in the state bowling tournament here Thursday, and several changes and near changes in the leaders took place.

Three changes in the doubles were made on one shift when E. Schroeder and W. Jens of Fond du Lac went into second place with 237, 245 and 264 for 687 total, which helped him materially in gaining first place for the all events with 1,541. He displaced E. Probst of Milwaukee, who had led with 1,514. In taking the all-events lead, Jens shot 592 in his team event, 654 in the doubles and 555 in the singles.

R. Thull of West Bend missed a chance to go into the lead in the singles when he shot 245 in his first and third games, only to drop to 132 in his second.

Third place in the team event is held by the Brest Construction company of Milwaukee with 2,757.

W. Jens was the big gun in the doubles combination of Jens and Schroeder, shooting games of 237, 245 and 264 for 687 total, which helped him materially in gaining first place for the all events with 1,541. He displaced E. Probst of Milwaukee, who had led with 1,514. In taking the all-events lead, Jens shot 592 in his team event, 654 in the doubles and 555 in the singles.

R. Thull of West Bend missed a chance to go into the lead in the singles when he shot 245 in his first and third games, only to drop to 132 in his second.

EBBETS, CHASTIAN BATTLE TONIGHT

Feature Program Arranged by Dempsey for Chicago Fight Fans

CHICAGO—(P)—Harry Ebbets, New York middleweight puncher, and Clyde Chastian of Dallas, Texas, will meet tonight in the 10-round feature of Promoter Jack Dempsey's sixth boxing program—an amateur Dempsey will operate by remote control.

The card will be the only major offering of the week in Chicago and Dempsey was hopeful it would draw enough trade to enable him to get some of his money back. His five previous shows have provided plenty of action but have left him in the red financially.

The semi-final will be not more than 10 rounds between Joey Medillo, Chicago lightweight, and Spug Myers, Pocatello, Idaho. Those two previous meetings resulted in close decisions for the former. Comedy relief is expected in a four-round "special" between George Patton, "one conqueror of Charles Arthur (the great) Shires, and Battling Criss, Rockwood, Mich., heavyweight who declined to take a dive for Shires. At the request, it was said, of one of Arthur's representatives.

LINDSLEY WINS THREE CUSHION BILLIARD MEET

SEATTLE, Wash.—(P)—Wallace Lindsley of Mount Vernon, Wash., held the Pacific Northwest amateur three cushion billiard championship today as the result of a victory over Jerry White of Seattle, 59 to 49 in a playoff match. The contest lasted 56 innings.

Lindsley will meet Jack Hall of San Francisco, south section finalist, in a 150-point match here later this month, the winner to represent the Pacific coast at the National tournament in St. Louis.

KIMBERLY NETBALLERS WIN FROM GREEN BAY

KIMBERLY—Kimberly club's "A" entry in the Fox River Valley ball league took three out of five games from the strong Green Bay Y. M. C. A. entry Thursday evening at the clubhouse gymnasium. Green Bay took the first game by a 15 to 10 count. Then Kimberly rallied and took the next three games 15 to 10, 15 to 7, 15 to 6. Green Bay took the final game by a 15 to 8 count. A. Jensen of the Appleton Y. M. C. A. refereed.

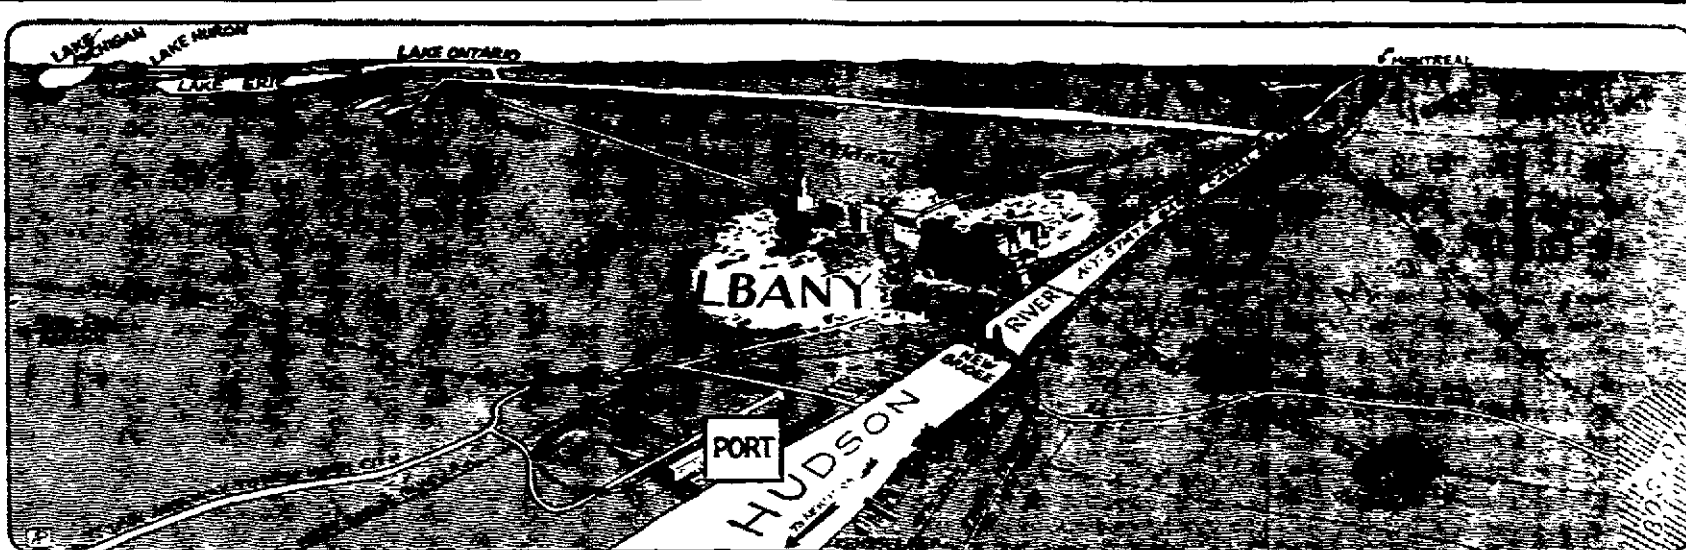

CUBS CHANGE KIKI'S CONTRACT TO 2 YEARS

CHICAGO—(P)—Hazen "Kiki" Cuyler, fleet rightfielder of the National league champion Chicago Cubs, has had his new contract revised to read "two years" instead of "one year." Cuyler, in Chicago with his Portland, Mich., semi-professional basketball team, has agreed to terms offered by President William L. Veech, but wanted a two-year term—and got it yesterday.

Los Angeles—Mastair MacDonald, son of the British prime minister, is having a fine time in Holland. The girls are lovelier than he supposed and Holland is not one whit wilder than London.

United States Regains World Port At Albany, N. Y.

After a lapse of many years, deep-draft ships from the seven seas again will be voyaging up the Hudson river from New York City to Albany, 160 miles from the open ocean. A vast interior territory will benefit. The map shows the port of Albany in relation to other water-ways and railroads.

BY L. E. ZAVITZ
ALBANY, N. Y.—(P)—Shades of early Dutch traders may chuckle with satisfaction soon as ocean going vessels again leave this city for distant ports.

Less than a century ago, Albany was one of the principal seaports on the western side of the Atlantic, sending its own ships to the Indies, Europe and even China.

With the increased draft of modern vessels it became impossible for many to make the 160-mile trip from open sea up the Hudson river from New York, and in the last 50 years few ocean going ships have been seen here. The historic Hudson has been turned over to passenger steamers of shallow draft and canal boats.

Now the new port of Albany, farthest inland seaport of the United States, is preparing to open its docks to world shipping.

Deepening of the Hudson for 30 miles south of the city, a project authorized by the federal government in 1926, will be completed within a few months at a cost of $11,500,000.

Keeping pace with the dredging of the river, the Albany port district, composed of the cities of Albany and Rensselaer, has constructed nearly a mile of concrete piers, extending along both sides of the river. Erection of terminal structures, including transit sheds, warehouses for lumber and grain will be started early in the spring.

Four large railroads converge on Albany and these will have direct connections with the docks. As Albany is the eastern terminal of the New York state barge canal system, and is the center of a vast network of trunk highways, the new port is expected to have all the advantages of a natural concentration of land and water transport facilities.

The Hudson is a tidal arm of the sea, at least as far as Albany. The tide has a daily rise here of almost four feet, and the difference in sea level at Governor's Island, in New York harbor, and Albany is only slightly more than one foot.

The new depth provided in the upper Hudson, 27 feet at minimum low water, will amount to at least 20 feet at all stages of the tide. At that depth, nearly 90 per cent of all cargo ships in the world can navigate.

Four years ago, federal engineers computed that the deepening of the Hudson would add more than 30,000,000 tons to the 1,500,000 river traffic annually. Economic benefits expected from the new port have steadily increased since then with the growing demand of the middle west for improved sea outlets.

The new port will bring Great Lakes shipping 160 miles nearer the sea. Compared with Montreal, the great inland seaport of Canada, ocean going vessels leaving Albany will have to travel only 160 miles to reach the open sea, while from Montreal they must travel 1,000 miles, 110 of which are through a ship canal.

This territory to be most directly benefited, directly or indirectly, by the new port lies for the most part in the mid-west belt, west of the Alleghenies and north of Tennessee. In that vast area lie Cleveland, Detroit, Columbus, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Denver.

MACDONALD'S SON INITIATED INTO BREAKFAST CLUB

Son of British Prime Minister Puts on Initiation of His Own

By JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

Los Angeles—(CPA)—They are discussing battleships in London while we are discussing ham and eggs here," observed Alastair MacDonald, son of the British prime minister, upon his initiation into the Los Angeles Breakfast Club Thursday.

"But if they would hold one of your ham and egg talks over there, I'm convinced there'd be no more war."

The Breakfast club, composed of influential business men, had quitted down after their usual riotous song about ham and eggs and turned with the proper expression of rapid attention to listen to their distinguished visitor. Rapt expressions speedily changed to roars of merriment. Although the regular initiation, which includes riding a dummy, horse and thrusting the hands of the blind, which novitate into a platter of warm scrambled eggs, had been considered too undignified for a premier's son, MacDonald staged an initiation of his own which shook the rough-and-tumble log cabin to its foundation.

More than six feet tall, he swept Alastair Todd and the Duncan Sisters in their feet and hussed them when the three him stars added in presenting the gold cord of membership, and he sat at the piano to turn leaves of "I would consider it an honor," he said upon achieving membership, "if they would send a cable ordering me to remain here. But, you know, I'm not really a guest of honor. I'm only somebody's son."

MacDonald, employed in an English firm laboratory some years ago by his present host, Jesse L. Lasky, is visiting Hollywood to study talking picture films from the technical angle in order to improve British films in the production of which he is interested. So far, he considers many movie plots "rather silly," but is enthusiastic about talkies. "As a rule," he explained, "your talking picture is a darned British producer of silent pictures. But since British audiences prefer British enunciation to American, the talking film will eventually prove a great benefit to the British picture industry."

The Breakfast club initiation took place in a room before 700 members who filled up to snuff. Yes, sir, only a few minutes of the club's proceedings in the club's open-air pavilion in the club's grounds at Riverside, in accordance with custom, the members began proceedings with fellowship. Seats guards entertained the new members, setting-up exercises, and tury at St. James' palace and the London custom.

at Los Angeles, was among the guests.

MacDonald, an enthusiastic air traveler, leaves for New York by plane next week. Between the premier and his son there is keen rivalry as to which shall fly the greater number of miles. One of MacDonald's first acts upon his arrival here was to cable his father that, since flying across the United States, he was now a thousand miles ahead. So outraged is young MacDonald with Hollywood that he called up Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador at Washington Thursday to postpone his appointment with Sir Esme for 24 hours. "I ought to stay in Hollywood three weeks," said MacDonald. His only public appearance will be at the Los Angeles labor temple Friday.

Pa Stribling Has Heavy Boxer He Thinks Is Good

Copyright 1930

New York—This being the season for invasions by foreign heavyweights, Pa Stribling has fallen in line and is sponsoring the advent of one Michael Maurer in American rings.

Maurer is a German heavyweight, weighing 150 pounds in fighting trim and standing six feet, one and one half inches. These measurements come under the heading of a regular heavyweight so Pa will not have the trouble of passing him off as a freak and will not be bothered overly much about having his shoes, skirts, suits or bed made to order. As Pa says: "He is only an ordinary mortal, but he can fight a good deal better than some of the giants imported in recent years."

Maurer has had something like 90 battles and has beaten Franz Diener, Jack Humbeck and a South African, Knockout Kid. He has never been knocked out and has never been knocked off his feet. When one talks about foreign heavies one wants to know what his quickest time is in getting down to and up from the floor. So far Joe Becker holds the record although Elzeaz Riox went him many seconds better. The latter's record will not stand because he went down from an invisible punch. Only discernible hits count in the scoring.

Pa Stribling was impressed by Mike Maurer because the latter was the only foreigner who would stand the Gaft in training with Young W. L. when, the latter was getting ready for Primo Carnera in Paris.

WILDCAT CAGERS TO PLAY MARQUETTE FIVE

CHICAGO—(P)—Northwestern's basketball team will ease out of its examination period layoff tonight in a game with Marquette university of Milwaukee.

The Wildcats have been inactive as far as formal battle is concerned since trouncing Chicago nearly two weeks ago. Coach Lomborg indicated Captain Rut Walter, who was benched before the Chicago contest, would be back in his old spot at center. Walter has shown more speed in practice and his shooting ability appears to have returned. Rut Bergham will be shifted back to forward.

The Big Ten championship schedule will be resumed tomorrow night, with Purdue seeking its fourth straight victory, at the expense of Chicago; Illinois invading Minnesota, and Indiana opening up again against Ohio State at Columbus.

APPLETON BARBERS TO MAKE PLANS FOR YEAR

The monthly meeting of the Appleton Barbers' Union will be held in Trades and Labor Council hall at 7:30 Monday evening. Applications for membership will be considered and reports reviewed. Plans for the coming year will be discussed.

Berlin—Ambassador Sackett has identified himself to the press, to wit: "I am a product of Kentucky, famous for its beautiful women, fine horses, good tobacco and—formerly— good whiskey."

THERONOID The New Way to Health

Theronoid is the most logical, safe, scientific and sensible appliance yet developed for curing magnetism in the treatment of disease.

Since the Theronoid converts electrical energy into electro-magnetic energy, there is no risk of any kind, and you may take your treatment while sitting and reading or watching a movie. You merely slip the Theronoid around your waist or shoulders, over all clothing, and connect the cord to a light socket. The only sensation will be one of pleasant warmth as your blood circulates more freely, and usually, when pain is present, a "going away" of the pain. Use the Theronoid five or ten minutes two or three times a day.

As a measure of our confidence in what Theronoid will do for you, we invite you to come to our offices and use the Theronoid once, or several times, absolutely free of charge. A fully trained attendant will answer your questions, refer you to other cases similar to your own and give you complete information, but will not urge you to buy. The Theronoid must sell itself.

When to many thousands have been helped after all other methods failed, is it not the sensible thing to investigate this pleasant, scientific method of regaining your health?

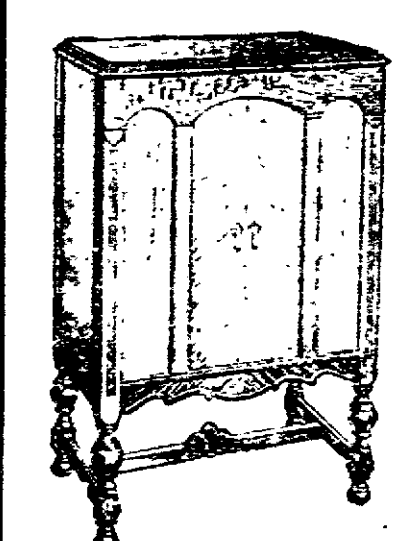

Use Theronoid for These Ailments

Electro-magnetism has absolutely proved its merit in all of the following conditions:

FINISH PLANS FOR LAUNCHING POTATO GROWERS' EXCHANGE

Officers of Waupaca Federated Clubs to Sponsor State Movement

Special to Post-Crescent
Waupaca—The greatest agricultural movement this county has ever sponsored is to be launched on Saturday at Manawa high school. Cooperative leaders invited from every county in the state and the co-op leaders of Waupaca-co expect to be 100 per cent present.

Officials of the Waupaca Federated Rural clubs have taken the initiative in organizing a Wisconsin Potato Growers' exchange along the lines, similar to the Michigan Potato Growers' exchange which today has 100 local co-ops merged and these locals own and control 100 warehouses.

Waupaca, Portage and Waushara counties lead the state in the production of commercial potatoes. Local co-ops have not merged and are simply group dumping agencies. No centralized marketing machinery has been created and a need for such organization has been felt for some time.

The Wisconsin Potato Growers' exchange will be organized under the federation system. Any co-op is eligible to become a member. It is hoped that this organization can in time affiliate with a national potato marketing agency as the grain co-ops, wool and live stock co-ops have done recently and that through such a unified action the Wisconsin exchange will then be eligible to get a loan from the Federal Farm board.

Leaders of the Federated clubs realize that the opportunity time to create such a marketing agency is now. There are 42 per hundred, but farmers should not forget the four or five year plan preceding the years of good prices.

The program for the opening program on Saturday follows: Committee meetings of Federation, 10 o'clock business meeting and committee reports; address, R. A. Peterson, chief of state co-op department; organization of Potato Growers' exchange motion pictures by Four Wheel Drive Co.

Dinner for the visitors will be served at the church parlors of the Methodist Episcopal church of Manawa by the Ladies' Aid society of the church.

DAIRY SURPLUS BY RAISING CALVES, EXPERT SUGGESTS

Practice Can Result in Getting Price of $3 Per Hundred Pounds for Milk

BY W. F. WINSEY
J. M. Coyner, field representative of the Wisconsin Live stock and improvement Council, proposes to reduce the surplus of dairy products and to get $3 per hundred pounds for milk, by raising calves. Here is what Mr. Coyner has to say on the subject:

The excellent prices being paid for well finished veal calves and the relatively low price of whole milk offers an unusual opportunity to dairymen. Milk marketed through veal calves will both return attractive prices and help to keep down the accumulation of dairy stocks. A choice veal calf can be produced in from four to six weeks, at three weeks a thrifty calf becomes a good market vealer, and should weigh 120 to 135 pounds. At five weeks if the calf has had plenty of whole milk, it should weigh from 140 to 175 pounds, and command the highest market price. Twelve cent veal will return $3 per hundred for calves weighing from 120 to 135 pounds. Fourteen cent veal will return $4 per hundred weight for milk consumed.

Wisconsin produces a million veal calves annually. The majority of calves would be materially improved by another week's feed of whole milk. An additional week's feed for Wisconsin's annual crop of calves would dispose of 150,000,000 pounds of whole milk. This enormous quantity of milk, if diverted from the regular dairy market channels, would exert a very stabilizing effect on the price of milk during the heavy production season, which we are just entering. The heavy production season of veal and milk coincide.

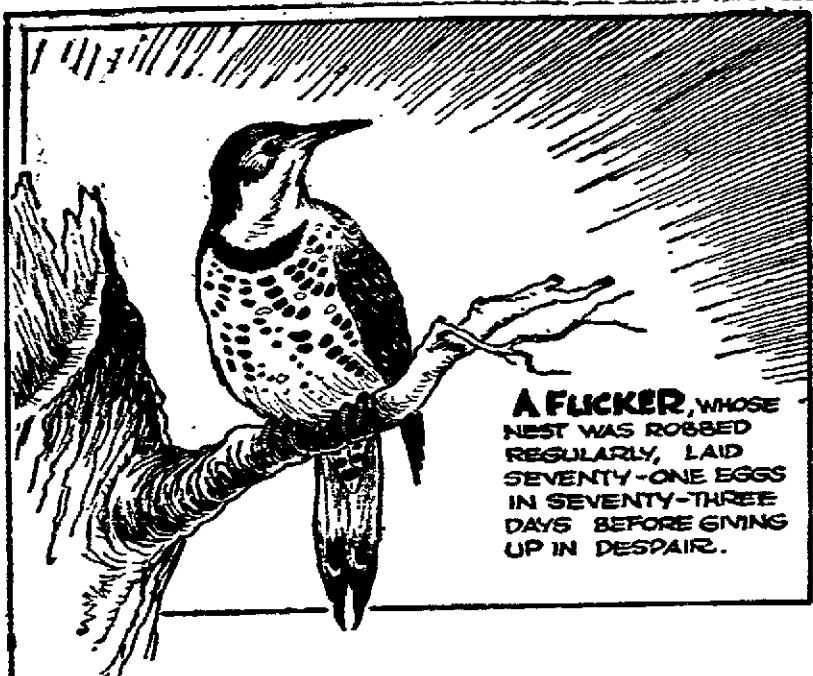

Dairy calves make excellent veal when well fitted. Quality veal can be produced only by the liberal feeding of whole milk. Only one more week's feed of whole milk would make a tremendous difference in the quality of the majority of Wisconsin veal calves. By delivering to the market better finished calves, the Wisconsin veal crop will become a greater source of profit to the dairymen, and will help solve the problem of surplus milk.

Public demand calls for young, tender meat of good quality and finish. The more popular veal becomes with the consuming public, the greater are the possibilities for profit to the producers of this important dairy crop.

Why take $150 for milk when veal calves return more than $3 for it?

NEW BASQUE SHADES ARE BLUE AND PINK

Sports Frocks, Evening Clothes, and Bathing Suits in These Colors

BY AILEEN LAMONT
Copyright, 1929, By Cosma Press (C.P.A.). It looks as though a good deal of basking on beaches will be done in the new and lovely basque shades. These include blue, red and pink. The blue is deep but bright, the red a frank and hearty shade, the pink a nice, buxom tint which by contrast makes a milky pink look faded. Not only sports frocks and evening clothes but also bathing suits are appearing in these colors.

Not content with revolutionizing skirts, Paris now proposes a different complexion. The rich sun-tan it seems, is out of date. A skin like peaches and cream will be the vogue. To preserve a peaches and cream complexion you may need to carry a parasol while swimming or mountain-climbing this summer, but who minds a little inconvenience so long as it makes for style?

Hostess pajamas grow more and more resplendent, and more and more like bifurcated skirts. One really lovely model is of white chiffon, the trousers vary flaring. It is worn with a white satin coat, edged with white marabout. This costume is labelled "for afternoon tea or bridge." It's going to be hard to keep one's mind on the game.

PLAN TO ESTABLISH MORE FISH REFUGES

Madison—(P)—Establishment of fish refuges in Wisconsin lakes will constitute an important part in the conservation commission's program this year. E. O. Webster, superintendent of fisheries, said today.

Webster said there are four ways in which Wisconsin's fisheries bureau can increase the number of fish. Propagation, protection, removal of "predatory" fish and successful administration of fish refuges were the points named by the superintendent.

Last spring the conservation commission established approximately 100 fish refuges in 21 different counties in the state. These refuges were all established after petition by local fishermen who wanted to take this additional step toward bettering the fishing in their own localities.

Fish refuges will benefit fishing condition in Wisconsin as much as game refuges have improved hunting, if they are systematically established and carefully administered, according to superintendent Webster.

Sportsmen throughout the state are asking that the conservation commission extend its policy of establishing lake refuges, according to Webster.

Harvard is the oldest college in the United States. It was established in 1638. Oberlin College in Oberlin, Ohio, was the first in the United States to admit female students.

DAILY ROUGHAGE IS AN ESSENTIAL IN ANY DIET

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Is Effective Relief for Constipation. Also Adds Iron to the Blood

Do you suffer from constipation? Are you one of those who have tried one "vest pocket cure" after another and still have no sense of permanent relief? If so, this is big news to you! Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is natural, effective relief for both temporary and recurring constipation. It is the original—and today is included in the diets of millions of people who formerly suffered from constipation.

When roughage is missing from food, constipation is the consequence. The soft foods we eat today seldom include enough roughage. The simple necessity, then, is to see to it that sufficient roughage is included in our food.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is the bulk that your system requires.

In addition, it is rich in iron. Scientific research proves that nearly all this iron is absorbed by the system, building red blood and bringing the glorious color of health to the complexion.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is positively guaranteed. Your money will be returned if you are not satisfied. Be sure to include it in reducing diets as a preventive for both constipation and anemia.

There are so many ways you can eat Kellogg's ALL-BRAN and enjoy it. In any form, it is appetizing. It is delicious with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over cereals and soups and notice the added flavor. Many people soak it in fruit juices. Excellent in cooked foods. Your grocer has Kellogg's ALL-BRAN in the red-and-green package. It is served in hotels, restaurants and dining-cars. Ask for it! Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

MAKE CHANGES IN HOLLYWOOD FILM ACTORS' CONTRACTS

Revisions Include Important Rulings Regarding Salaries and Conditions

Hollywood, Calif.—(AP)—A joint committee of representative Hollywood motion picture actors and producers at the end of a closed meeting here Wednesday announced adoption of important revisions of the standard form of contract in vogue in Hollywood studios.

The joint committee, which met at the instigation of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, thrashed out its differences under a contract provision which allows for revisions, mutually agreed upon, as working and producing conditions change. The revised contract form will become effective as soon as it can be printed and distributed. Two principal revisions adopted provide that:

When an actor starts work on a picture, he shall remain on salary until the picture is completed. No doubts may be used for artists, unless to meet requirements of foreign censorship, or to perform some act of which the artist is incapable.

Producers must give actors reasonable notice of dismissal (no stipulation as to what is to be considered reasonable notice was agreed upon.) If an actor is called back for retakes within six months after completion of a production, he must work at the salary he received during the original filming. If he is called back after six months, and his salary since has increased, he is to receive the same salary he would receive in a new production.

A 12-hour rest period shall be guaranteed between studio calls. An agreement was reached by the producers that actors employed by the day, to whom the standard contract does not apply, shall be accorded an 8-hour day, with one-eighth of a day's salary for each hour of overtime required.

The committee ratified a previous agreement of the Hollywood actors to refuse to support or countenance a strike or any radical action by any group of actors that might be injurious to the motion picture industry so long as the letter and the spirit of this agreement is observed.

New York—Henry Butts, pistol expert of the New York police, is convinced that "thousands" of gunmen in Chicago fire only blank cartridges. He testified so in the trial of one Max Brand, accused of possession of firearms. Brand's gun could not shoot bullets and the case was dismissed.

CRIPPLED MEMBER PLAYS GAME WITH PALS IN CONGRESS

Washington, D.C.—(AP)—There's a little game that daily goes on in the marble floored lobby of the house of representatives.

Like a mounted captain of the Texas volunteer guards that he used to command, Joseph Jefferson Mansfield, wheel chair member of congress from the Ninth Texas district, comes charging into the lobby.

Sternly he speaks to whatever colleague happens to be in the lobby. "Boy, boy, want to earn another nickel, open the gate."

All the representatives are glad to be boys again for Mansfield.

They push aside the swinging doors, and Mansfield swiftly wheels himself through to the floor of the house. All the vitality, bespeaking his upstanding shock of gray hair, his bristling, gray mustache, goes into the motion with which the Texas representative propels his wheel chair. He is always the farthest front seat. He sits erectly and alertly listens to debate or animatedly chats with his colleagues on the front row—behind his wheel chair.

However, he appears to be greeted with a gay, "Hello, there judge."

Then it's boy, boy, want to earn another nickel, open the gate.

New York—In 45 years the Rev. Dr. Vincent Pilek, Presbyterian, performed 11,532 marriages, none of which ended in divorce. He was a bachelor, he has died at the age of 71.

TOULON EUROPE'S NARCOTICS CAPITAL

Authorities Aroused by Seven Deaths in Few Months — Face Tough Task

Toulon, France—(AP)—Seven deaths from narcotics in the past few months have aroused the authorities to the realization that his French marine station seems likely to be the narcotic headquarters of Europe. The latest death was that of a millionaire merchant of Nice who had extensive interests in the United States and Canada. He arrived with two friends with the express purpose of getting a new sensation, located an opium place, took an over-dose and died.

Singapore or Bombay cannot boast of a more mysterious dope quarter. Opium dens, hashish houses, cellars where other drugs are sold almost openly can not be missed by any one who secures a proper guide. Detection by the police is made extremely difficult because the source of supply is not in the hands of one ring but is spread out through groups who smuggle the drugs from the Orient and dispose of them in small quantities.

From Toulon the narcotics and their way all along the Riviera, even to within a few miles of the Italian border where a stately villa conceals one of the most luxurious opium halls of the world. Though watched continually by the police and raided from time to time, no incriminating evidence has ever been secured.

Marseilles and Toulon are now said to be running a close race for being known as the crime center of France and the Mediterranean, a general title unanimously handed Port Said for many years.

Premier Tardieu recently stepped into the race Marseilles was making when he sifted police officials, demoting several of them, following a popular uproar after a jury had practically stated that ten years imprisonment was enough for a murderer.

The Secret of Mohawk Pond

Chapter 31 THE TWIN BROTHERS

Obadiah found Philander Chase standing in front of the south window of the parlor, examining a china bowl on a quaint old mahogany candlestand.

"One doesn't often see a Japanese garden in a New England farmhouse," he said, as Obadiah joined him.

"I'm sent it to Debby, my housekeeper," Obadiah answered, producing a cigar which Chase declined.

"She thinks a heap of the little houses and bridges," pointing to the tiny Japanese toys and wooden miniature men and women.

"You keep it in too much sunshine," said Chase; then, stooping over to examine the plant in the center of the bowl more carefully: "In fact, this Tree of Life should be pot-tered; it's outgrown the bowl."

He looked up suddenly. "Who were you talking with just now?"

"Big Bill Deach, the Sheriff of Litchfield county."

"No. The road from East Cornwall end up the pass is too rough, except for a Ford car; I tried it once and broke a spring. Debby—most all said your brother was coming back here tonight. I'll be glad to put you both up."

"Won't that inconvenience you?"

"Not a bit, and the heartiness of his answer carried conviction."

"That's very kind of you; I'll gladly stay," and Chase picked up the projected cigar. His fingers sought his vest pocket, then the other, and his expression grew startled.

"Want a match?" Obadiah tossed him a box which he caught.

"Thanks."

Chase puffed at the cigar with nervous anxiety until he had it going to his satisfaction.

"You say supper isn't ready?"

"Not quite; in about half an hour, Debby said."

Obadiah moved toward the door. "If you're hungry I'll go hurry."

"Please don't," objected Chase. He gained the hall door first.

"I left a most important slip of paper with Miss Prescott, and the half hour will give me time to get it. But don't wait for me if I'm detained!"

Deborah, busy with her preparations for supper looked up as Obadiah's figure appeared in the door of the kitchen.

"Don't hurry supper," he said; "maybe we'll all be late tonight."

The housekeeper's heated objection died unspoken, as she caught Obadiah's stern expression.

"And, Debby, stand by to answer the phone, no matter at what hour it rings."

Turning on his heel, Obadiah was in time to open his front door before the knocker fell again.

"Well, well, come on in," he exclaimed cordially at sight of the little botanist. "Here, let me take that bag," observing Aquila Chase's tired and bedraggled appearance.

"Careful," Obadiah cautioned Chase, as the former tossed the canvas bag down on the hall table. "I wouldn't have anything happen to that specimen of the green fringed orchids. Do you mind taking me in for the night?"

"Glad to," responded the farmer with flattering warmth. "You can have your old room and your brother the one next to it."

"My brother!" Chase stumbled over a footstool which the housekeeper had put at the foot of the stairs, intending to carry it to her room on her next trip there. "Philander?"

"Sure; he's been looking for you all day," and as the other started up the staircase: "You brothers over at New Lodge."

"Oh!" Chase wiped all traces of dust and perspiration from his face and returned his handkerchief to his pocket. "I'll walk over there and join him."

"But I say, supper—"

"Don't keep it for me. In his haste to be gone, Chase jostled against the half table and in so doing knocked his specimen bag to the floor.

With the methodical habits of a lifetime, Obadiah found a carpet and brush and removed the soil from the floor. He shook his head over the plant, then, securing a pail, set it in first adding some water.

After that task was completed, he entered the best parlor and opened the top drawer of the highboy. His search proving futile, he took out the contents of the sofa, went through them thoroughly, but with the same result—the automatic pistol holster he was looking for was not there.

Julius' conscience pricked her and she hurried along Mohawk Lane with ever increasing speed. No matter how enticing the prospect of hot donuts, she should not have left Miss Peggy for so long a time.

Her salt became almost a run as she came in sight of New Lodge and her haste moved her yawning. Tripping over the same tree root which had caused Obadiah Evans to measure his length on the ground one stormy night, Julia fell prone.

Getting hastily to her feet she gathered up the doughnuts in a nap apron, which she still wore under her light coat, for the dish was broken in a dozen pieces. It was not the dish, however, that caused Julia's concern, but the loss of her key to the front door. She had taken it from her pocket to have a hardy knock on the door, when she found it was missing. She tried to open the door, but she was unable to do so. She was locked out of the house.

Waxing impatient, Julia banged the brass knocker up and down. Still Miss Peggy did not come. The maid paused for a second, then running around the house, she tried the kitchen door, beating upon it more and more vigorously. Getting no response, Julia tore around to the veranda and tried the living room door; it also was locked and no amount of pounding brought her young mistress to open it.

Julia dropped down on the nearest chair. Hal Miss Peggy goes out in her absence? It was hardly likely, for she had spent the hour allowed her canoeing on the Mohawk Pond that morning.

The colored girl rose shakily to her feet, terror of the unknown causing her to break out in a cold perspiration. Why didn't Miss Peggy admit her? She was locked out of New Lodge but—had she not left Peggy Prescott inside the house?

RACKETS STARTING OFF NEW YEAR IN REAL BOOM STYLE

Almost Every Major City in Country Now Faced With Problem

BY OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Chicago.—(P)—Rackets, curbed somewhat during 1929—are starting off 1930 in boom style.

Not alone in Chicago, but in every major city of the country, these trade parasites are becoming entrenched behind the protective bulwark of collusion, arrangements involving business, politics and labor, until shortly the most difficult of crime cures will grow from racketeering.

Gordon L. Hostetter, executive secretary of the Employers' Association of Chicago, co-author of "The Racket," and the original battler against this growing form of crime, made these assertions Thursday.

He was inspired to comment by evidence that this modern type of gang undertaking which multiplies
Chicago residents alone out of over $100,000 a year and people in cities generally out of more than a billion—is making renewed headway.

"We were encouraged to think during 1929 that some forms of rackeering were definitely on the wane, owing to public antagonism," said Mr. Hostetter. Public boycott broke the front of the cleaners and dyers powerful organization and hard times were evident in the garage racket, but it is developments that have eliminated the racketeers simply are using more finesse.

"Chicago is not alone in harboring these criminal alliances—always involving unscrupulous labor leaders, politicians and dishonest businessmen. St. Louis, Kansas City, Detroit, Minneapolis, Cleveland, New York, Seattle, Omaha, San Francisco, Portland and Oakland are a few more cities which face similar situations on a modified scale."

"The sooner the public realizes that it pays the freight for rackets, which thrive only by extortion or by collusion to eliminate competition, the quicker the problem will be solved. This sort of crime business is immensely profitable and now is attracting the most dangerous of criminal elements, because they are the shrewdest. Only a determined and aroused citizenry can oust them."

DAMAGE INCREASES Emphasis is given the question of racketeering in Chicago where several terrific bomb blasts have occurred this year. So far 13 of them have been exploded. The average damage has been approximately $9, 600 compared with $1,113 for 1929 and $960 for 1928.

"Formerly most of the bombs thrown in the racket industry were sort of ceiling cards," Mr. Hostetter said. "They warned that the proprietor of the store or rite provider of service would do well to follow the racket orders. It is evident that more and more the bombs are of the business type—for damage."

During the past eight years in Chicago, 774 bombs have been thrown.
Two convictions for bombing have been obtained and five convictions for conspiracy to bomb. Mr. Hostetter explains that it is so simple a matter to make the typical "pine apple" that an effective check to the syndicates is extremely difficult.

Boldness of the present day rackeeter is indicated by a typical case in Hinsdale, a suburb of Chicago, where a bomb was thrown early this week into the rear of a movie where 499 persons, mostly children, were seated.

The owner of the theater had been warned to employ two operators at a total of $203 a week. He could not afford this and offered to pay $104.60 a week to one. It was two or none.
Then his film service was shut off by one of the country's largest agencies. He went to their office and while there, according to his story, he was taken in hand by three big cruisers, slugged, one eye badly injured, four teeth kicked out and shot in the leg.

The story is typical of scores of others being heard in Chicago. They are beginning to be heard in other cities as well and according to Mr. Hostetter, only vigorous action can solve the problem created.

FAMOUS ACTORS IN NEW PRODUCTIONS

Mrs. Fiske, Fred Stone,
George Jessel in Different Roles Next Week

BY WARD MOREHOUSE

New York.—(P)—Mrs. Fiske,
Fred Stone, George Jessel, Ernest Truax—these front rank players of the drama in this town—will come along next week in new productions.

Mrs. Fiske and Mr. Truax are in their second plays of the current season. Mr. Stone has a new musical show, and a big one. George Jessel's play calls upon him to appear as the titular hero.

"It's a Grand Life," new comedy
by Hatcher Hughes and Alan Wulframs will be offered Monday night at the Cort by A. L. Erlanger and George C. Tyler. Mrs. Fiske is the star.

"Ritz," by Vera Tattersall and Sdney Toler, will come into the Longacre Monday night under the auspices of L. Lawrence Weber. Ernest Truax is starred and Miriam Hopkins is featured.

"Rings," the new Fred Stone show, will be presented by Charles Dillingham at the New Amsterdam
Tuesday night. Three other Stones —Dorothy, Paula and Mrs. Stone—are with Fred.

"Joseph," by Bertram Bloch, and with George Jessel starred, will be presented Wednesday night at the Liberty by John Golden. The incidental music is by Joseph Rumshinsky.

There was still some doubt today as to just what actress will go into the June Walker role in "Waterloo Bridge" when she leaves that enter-bers of the state law enforcement department turned the prison topsy-turvy in an effort to locate the possible means of a new revolt, but without result. Colonel Hamrock will prosecute the search today.

The quest is a life and death matter to the prison population of 1,100 men—prisoners and guards. A story of intrigue, blood mutiny and constant unrest is the history of the Canon City prison and weapons within its walls are regarded as matches in a powder barrel.

Within those walls, more than half a century old, are reminders of violence such as few similar institutions have seen—smoke blackened remnants of the prison dining room, the wreck of the fire-raised library, the damaged interiors of chapel and the prison tailor shop, incendiarily burned only a few days ago.

The first open rebellion of the prison's history flamed in 1900 after a period of discontent marked by numerous escapes. Two men were killed after inciting a riot and attempting to escape in the confusion.

Then Tom Tynan became warden and the prison was quiet under his progressive administration. Tynan resigned in 1927 under political pressure, however, and after a short interval was succeeded by Warden

TEA TESTERS HOLD ANNUAL TEA PARTY

Seven Men Engaged in Testing More Than 100 Kinds of This Product

Special Dispatch to Post-Crescent
New York.—(CPA)—There's a clatter of spoons in tea cups and much croaking of little fingers at 291 Varick-st these mornings, while the seven tea tasters of the federal government hold their annual tea party.

Seven faultless palates are engaged in tests that make a blindfold cigarette contest seem like child's play, all for the purpose of setting up standards for the cup that cheers, but doesn't inebriate. Tea which fails to meet these standards is not allowed entry through United States ports.

The tea-tasting committee has started off with more than 100 kinds of tea and expects to finish its task in a few days. It all depends on the quality of teas submitted by the importers and how soon the tasters can agree on what sorts and conditions of tea are suited for American refreshment. This country annually consumes about 100,000,000 pounds of tea.

Members of the United States board of tea experts are John J. Mc-Namara, of New York, chairman;
Charles F. Hutchinson, government tea examiner stationed in New York; secretary; Robert A. Lewis, of Boston; Arthur T. Hellyer, of Chicago;
A. P. Irwin, of Philadelphia; Edward Branstetter, of San Francisco, and J. J. Shaw, of Seattle.

tainment at the end of next week.
She and the management have disagreed, or she and Glenn Hunter have disagreed—and so she is leaving the cast. One guess is that Marjorie Rambau may get the role yet.

Richard Bennett has a play at last.
It's "Siberia," adapted by William
A. Drake from the Hungarian of Lajos Zalkay, and is to be produced by the Shuberts. Lawrence Marston will stage it. Mr. Bennett was last seen in "Jarnegan."

Alla Nazimova, whose door-slamming as Ibsen's Nora is recalled by many of the town's playgoers, has been engaged by the Theatre Guild.
She will be seen in Turgenyev's "A Month in the Country," which will be the Guild production to follow Shaw's
"The Apple Cart." It will be her first appearance this season. The Guild production of "The Apple Cart" will open at the Martin Beck on Feb. 4.

"Freddie suffered from constipation," says Mrs. Fred Anderson, 29, Fifteenth St., Milwaukee. "His breath was bad; he was bilious, didn't have any appetite; couldn't digest his food."

"California Fig Syrup has changed all that. It regulated his bowels quickly; improved his appetite and digestion. He has improved right along until friends say he's a regular prize-winner for health."

Mothers by thousands praise California Fig Syrup. Physicians endorse it. Its rich, fruity flavor appeals to children; its pure vegetable goodness is safe for any child. The prompt relief it brings bilious, headachy, constipated children lasts; because it helps tone and strengthen

MEXICO CONTINUES TO HUNT PLOTTERS AFTER SHOOTING

Twenty Persons Detained in Addition to Young Would-

Mexico City.—(P)—Widespread investigation of the attempt Wednesday against the life of Pascual Ortiz
Rubio, was pushed today by Emilio
Portes Gil, minister of interior, Military, judicial, and police authorities cooperated.

In addition to the assassin, Daniel detained in Mexico City. Seven others, including two brothers of

were arrested at San Luis Potosi and
are being held there.

President Ortiz Rubio continued to day for removal of a splinter in his jaw, where the bullet of the assassin struck him. Newspaper men were shown the incision, which was classified to the thickness of a dime,

probably against the "glass" wall
where the president's car was enclosed before it struck him.

None of the six others injured in the shooting was in serious condition. Injuries of all being minor except that of the chauffeur of the president's car, who was wounded
in the shoulder. Schorn de Rubio Rubio, and the president's young niece, Senorita Maria Rosh, both of whom were grazed by bullets, were

Backaches and Biliousness Soon Ended By New Treatment.

Mr. Peter Bernard
and that is "Dreco." Let Mr. Peter Bernard, 222 Wisconsin St., Janes-
ville, Wis., tell you in his own words
just how Dreco helped him.

"For years I suffered terrible agony with pains across my back and constipation. I was always constipated and at times a bitter, stale acid would come up into my mouth that would make me deathly sick. A good friend told me about Dreco and advised me
to give it a trial. A trial was all this medicine needed, as it did wonders for
me. I was soon feeling fine and now all my aches and pains are gone. I want to take this stand to recommend Dreco to all sufferers."

MEXICO CONTINUES TO HUNT PLOTTERS AFTER SHOOTING

Twenty Persons Detained in Addition to Young Would-be Rubio Assassin

Mexico City.—(P)—Widespread investigation of the attempt Wednesday against the life of Pascual Ortiz
Rubio, was pushed today by Emilio
Portes Gil, minister of interior, Military, judicial, and police authorities cooperated.

In addition to the assassin, Daniel Flores, who was held in military prison last week, about 20 others were in-detained in Mexico City. Seven others, including two brothers of Flores, named Arnulfo and Pilar were arrested at San Luis Potosi and
are being held there.

President Ortiz Rubio continued to improve after a second operation yesterday for removal of a splinter in
his jaw, where the bullet of the assassin struck him. Newspaper men were shown the incision, which was classified to the thickness of a dime,
probably against the "glass" wall
where the president's car was enclosed before it struck him.

None of the six others injured in
the shooting was in serious condition. Injuries of all being minor except that of the chauffeur of the president's car, who was wounded
in the shoulder. Schorn de Rubio
Rubio, and the president's young niece, Senorita Maria Rosh, both of whom were grazed by bullets, were up and about. Senora de Ortiz spending most of her time at the president's bedside.

Ended By New Treatment.

Mr. Peter Bernard
and that is "Dreco." Let Mr. Peter Bernard, 222 Wisconsin St., Janes-
ville, Wis., tell you in his own words
just how Dreco helped him.

"For years I suffered terrible agony with pains across my back and constipation. I was always constipated
and at times a bitter, stale acid would come up into my mouth that would make me deathly sick. A good friend
told me about Dreco and advised me
to give it a trial. A trial was all this medicine needed, as it did wonders for
me. I was soon feeling fine and now
all my aches and pains are gone. I want to take this stand to recommend Dreco to all sufferers."

the authorities continued to believe the shooting was the development of

POTATO SHIPPERS FILE COMPLAINT FOR LOWER RATES

Association Charges That Present Rates Are Discriminatory

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—The Northern Potato Traffic association has filed a brief with the Interstate Commerce Commission in support of its complaint against the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad asking lower rates on potatoes from Wisconsin points to Missouri River points and southwestern states.

The association charges that the rates from the Princeton group, which includes 57 stations in Wisconsin and Minnesota, to Missouri River points and to southwestern states are unreasonable, discriminatory, and prejudicial.

It does not ask for reparation but wishes the Commission to prescribe reasonable rates for the future.

The present rate to Kansas City, St. Joseph, Atchison and Leavenworth is 38 1/2 cents and to Omaha and Council Bluffs 39 1/2 cents. The Northern Potato Traffic Association maintains that 32 cents to Kansas City, St. Joseph, Atchison, and Leavenworth and 23 1/2 to Omaha and Council Bluffs would be proper and reasonable.

The potato traffic association has filed another brief with the Commission supporting a complaint against the same railroad concerning rental charges made by the railroad for the use of refrigerators and other insulated cars to transport potatoes and other vegetables.

The potato association claims that the $5 per car charged by the railroad for shipments from Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, is unreasonable, unjustly discriminatory, unlawful, and contrary to the Hoch-Smith resolution which provides for rates as low as possible on agricultural products.

No similar charges for refrigerator cars are made on shipments to northern states. No charges are made on shipments from Colorado, Utah, Idaho and Montana. Out of the total 18 cents potato producing states, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Maine, and Nebraska are the only ones which must pay such charges.

The potato association further argues that transport rates and earnings per car from Wisconsin and Minnesota are now much higher than in 1914 when the rental charge was approved.

The Atchison, Topeka, and Santa Fe Railroad has also filed a brief with the Commission replying to the complaint concerning refrigerator car charges.

They claim that in a previous complaint brought by the Wisconsin Potato Shippers Association, and in five other cases, the $5 charge was sustained by the Commission.

They agree that it is the railroad's duty to provide equipment for shippers but it is not a part of that duty to provide protection for vegetables against spoiling, they say. Since shippers are not compelled to use the Shippers Protective Service which charges for the refrigerator cars, but can use box cars, the $5 per car service is not their only means of shipping.

Furthermore they assert that Wisconsin and Minnesota potato shippers have lower rates than the competing Montana growers who do not have to pay the $5 charge.

"IN KONJOLA I SURELY FOUND RIGHT MEDICINE"

Man Suffered for Seven Years Before Finding New and Different Medicine

MR. PAUL GIBSON

"In Konjola I surely found the right medicine," said Mr. Paul Gibson, 410 Locust street, Burlington, "and my only regret is that I did not find it about seven years ago when my troubles began. After eating gases formed in my stomach causing bloating and misery. Chronic constipation clogged my system with poisons and rheumatism, with its agonizing aches and pains, set in. My knees and ankles were stiff and swollen, causing pain, and I walked with great difficulty."

"The first bottle of Konjola proved to me that I had found the medicine I needed. Thereafter improvement was rapid and in six weeks, rheumatism was gone. Now I enjoy my meals knowing that there will be no pain or misery afterward. My bowels have been regulated and I feel simply great. Take my advice and give Konjola a trial if you suffer as I did."

Konjola is sold in Appleton at Schatz Bros. drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Approximately 1,734,000 gallons of water were used to wash filters last month, while a year ago in January 2,374,000 gallons were used.
